Trend toward smaller families continues, survey shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the second year in a row, young women are saying they want no more than two children, indicating the mystique of the large family may be shattered.

"The cultural norm now is two kids," said Maurice Moore, chief of the fertility branch at the Census Bureau. "The pressure among young people's peers isn't towards having large families. There are alternative possibilities for fun."

A new Census Bureau report shows young women haven't altered their fertility expectations in the last two years. In 1975, the average was about 2.5 children per woman, almost the same as it was in 1974.

In 1967, however, only 45 per cent of American wives ages 18 to 24 expected two children. Most wanted more.

Changing attitudes about women, a faltering economy, improved methods of contraception and an increasing awareness of population problems are among the reasons Moore cited for the trend toward smaller families.

"My own private view is that these changes reflect an increasing awareness of the population problems that have been drummed into us for years," Moore said in an interview. "From an environmental point of view, people are being thought of as a polluting element."

Moore said the women's movement has been another motivating factor. "Women are redefining their role in terms of equality and reproduction. The women's movement has provided young women with the thought that they can do something for awhile before having children," he said.

The economy has a definite impact, too, he said. "Money is harder to come by — and so are jobs. If times get better, we may see an upswing (in fertility), but I honestly don't think that will happen.

"The birth rate is still going down, and there's no indication that we'll see an upswing. Even the absolute number of births is increasing only slightly."

Moore said effective contraception has enabled families to plan their size with more certainty. "In the last few years, the efficiency of contraception has improved considerably. That can't hurt."

The social climate of the last decade may have had a more subtle impact on young people's attitudes about child-rearing.

"The problems of the 1960s may have contributed to all this," Moore said. "People see kids growing up and kicking their parents in the pants."

Jobless rate in dramatic drop

Declines from 8.3% to 7.8%, largest in more than 16 years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate dropped from 8.3 per cent to 7.8 per cent in January, the largest monthly decline in the jobless rate in more than 16 years, the government said today.

The Labor Department said total employment in January increased by 800,000, the largest monthly job increase since early 1960. Total employment in the economy in January was 86.2 million, which was close to the prerecession peak employment in July of 1974.

The Labor Department figures are sure to win the Ford administration support for its economic policies in 1976.

The gains in employment were widespread throughout the economy, with only the teen-age jobless rate failing to improve.

The Labor Department gave the following unemployment breakdown:

—Adult men, 5.8 per cent, down from 6.6 per cent in December.

—Adult women, 7.5 per cent, down from 8 per cent.

—Whites, 7.1 per cent, down from 7.6 per cent.

—Blacks and other races, 13.2 per cent, down from 13.8 per cent.

—Heads of households, 5.1 per cent, down from 5.7 per cent.

—Married men, 4.1 per cent, down from 4.8 per cent.

—Full-time workers, 7.3 per cent, down from 7.9 per cent.

—White collar workers, 4.7 per cent, down from 4.8 per cent.

—Blue collar workers, 9.4 per cent, down from 10.7 per cent.

—Teen-agers, 19.9 per cent, up from 19.6 per cent in December.

The Labor Department said total employment in January was 2.1 million above the recession low of last March, when the unemployment rate was 8.5 per cent. The peak unemployment rate during the recession was 8.9 per cent in May, when the labor force had shrunk to a low level.

Ford administration economists had predicted a decline in unemployment in January, but nothing near the decrease reported by the Labor Department.

"It surprised me," said one department analyst. "But one month can be misleading," the analyst added.

The analyst said seasonal adjustment factors, which sometimes distort employment and unemployment totals, could have influenced the January improvement. Such distortions would not be determined until later reports, however.

The Labor Department said the decline of five-tenths of a per cent in unemployment was the largest monthly drop since December of 1959, when the jobless rate also declined by that amount.

A substantial portion of the employment gains, the Labor Department said, occurred in manufacturing and trade. Most of the people who found jobs, it said, were people who had previously lost them.

The number of unemployed fell by about 450,000 to 7.3 million, on a seasonally adjusted basis.

Acting CIW director nominated

Mrs. Kathleen Anderson, 44, a veteran of 12 years in state corrections work, has been named acting superintendent at California Institution for Women, Chino, Jerry Enomoto, state Director of Corrections, announced today in Sacramento.

Enomoto will place Mrs. Anderson's name in nomination to Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who is responsible for making a permanent appointment to replace Brook Carey, who resigned as superintendent of CIW this week.

Mrs. Anderson is presently associate superintendent of correction training at Solidad prison. She was the first woman to be assigned to this post at a men's correction institution in 1974.

A member of the state Department of Corrections since 1963, Mrs. Anderson was assigned to CIW as a training officer and in other posts until she took the Solidad post in 1974.

A widow and mother of three children, Mrs. Anderson holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Kansas and a master's degree from USC.

Nixons accept invitation to revisit China

TOKYO (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon and his wife Pat have been invited to visit China beginning Feb. 21 and have accepted "with pleasure," the official Hsinhua news agency said today.

It said the visit will mark the fourth anniversary of the Nixons' first visit to China.

"The historic visit to China made by President Richard Nixon of the United States of America and Mrs. Nixon and the issuance of the joint communique by China and the United States in 1972 have played a significant role in improving Sino-U.S. relations," Hsinhua said.

$1 million payoff by Lockheed?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. paid more than $1 million to a "high government official in the Netherlands" to promote aircraft sales to the country, Lockheed's chief executive officer testified today.

Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, of the the Senate subcommittee on multinational corporations, called the payment a bribe. Lockheed executive A. C. Kotchian called the money a gift but said he would not quibble with Church's characterization.

Move afoot to extend Daylight Saving Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Daylight Saving Time set to open a six month run from April 25 to Oct. 31, moves are underway in Congress to extend it to eight months.

Convinced that crime, energy use and traffic accidents drop during Daylight Saving Time, the Senate Commerce Committee has approved legislation to return most states to Daylight Saving for roughly eight months, from the first Sunday in March through the second Sunday in November this year and next.

The House Commerce Committee has yet to hold hearings on a new Daylight Saving Time bill.

A move to keep the six-month period was defeated by the Senate Commerce Committee in favor of eight months and one week of DST and three months and three weeks of standard time this year and in 1977.

During that two-year period, the Department of Transportation would reach final conclusions on how Americans fare under DST. The Senate committee says the department's interim report shows "small but significant benefits to the general public from an additional two months of advanced (DST) time each year."

Using the department data, the panel predicts permanent eight-month DST would mean at least a 1 per cent cut in electricity usage, which translates to about 100,000 barrels of oil per day; a saving of 50 lives and 2,000 injuries in traffic accidents each year; no adverse effect on school children who have to wait for buses in earlymorning darkness, and likely reductions in street crime.

How does setting a clock forward one hour do all that?

It is assumed most homes would save an hour's fuel in the evening under DST since the sun would set an hour later. But if a family has to arise before sunrise, this saving could be reduced or eliminated.

It also is assumed that more street crimes are committed in the dark of evening than in the early morning. Thus, reducing the period when potential victims are outside should cut crime, the study concludes.

As for traffic accidents, experts argue that the evening rush hour is heavier than in the morning because the late-day traffic includes not only homebound workers but shopping and recreational traffic.

Until the energy crisis hit in late 1973, the United States operated under six months daylight and six months standard time each year. As an energy-saving measure, Congress ordered year-'round DST for 1974.

But because of difficulties in January and February, when days are shorter, DST was in use only 10 months in 1974 and was cut back to eight months in 1975.

Opposition to daylight savings comes mainly from farmers, mostly in the South, who say they can't work their fields until the morning dew dries, and from large population areas that are located on the extreme western edge of the eastern time zone.

Perhaps one of the most intriguing facets of the daylight savings debate is that the Senate bill would extend daylight savings not for eight months, as in 1975, but for eight months and one week.

The reason: Eight months would mean a time change the day before the national elections. Presumably, an extra week would cushion incumbent congressmen against the ire of die-hard proponents of standard time.

Intelligence agency watchdog plan draws blast from Levi

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi today rejected "as an attack on the integrity " of the Justice Department a proposal to appoint a special prosecutor to investigate any wrongdoing by the CIA, FBI and other intelligence agencies.

Levi told the Senate Government Operations Committee the proposal assumes that the "ordinary law enforcement mechanism cannot be trusted" to investigate any suspicious activities by government employees.

"It's a most debilitating and destructive view of the Department of Justice and of the government," Levi said. "If I believed that, I would ask myself what I am doing here."

The proposal to appoint a special prosecutor was made Thursday by the chairman of the Senate intelligence committee.

Sweeping recommendations approved by the House intelligence committee would create a permanent House panel to keep an eye on U.S. spy activities and would outlaw such covert military aid operations as the CIA project in Angola.

The committee also approved recommendations that would subject members who leak information to censure or expulsion from the House and subject staff aides who leak secrets to dismissal and criminal prosecution.

The recommendation to outlaw U.S. operations like the one in Angola was approved 7 to 5 and includes a ban on assassination attempts against foreign leaders except in time of war. The committee:

Completing its major recommendations Thursday, the House intelligence committee also approved a proposal to require a president to report every covert operation to Congress within 48 hours, much as military action must be reported under the War Powers Act.

The committee also approved recommendations that would subject members who leak information to censure or expulsion from the House and subject staff aides who leak secrets to dismissal and criminal prosecution.

The recommendation to outlaw U.S. paramilitary operations like the one in Angola was approved 7 to 5 and includes a ban on assassination attempts against foreign leaders except in time of war.

Raindrops keep falling, may depart by Sunday

Another inch of rain soaked the valley today as the longest and wettest storm of the season continued to bring intermittent showers.

The weatherman called for more rain today and Saturday, but he said the storm may move eastward by Sunday.

Snow Crest Lodge at Mt. Baldy reported 18 inches of snow on the ground and two to three feet on the slopes at the 8,000-foot elevations, providing the best ski conditions of the season. Ski lifts will operate Saturday for the first time this winter.

About four inches of snow also were on the ground at Baldy Village, and forest rangers and sheriff's deputies were expecting heavy crowds of snow frolickers both Saturday and Sunday.

Rainfall during the past 24 hours brought the total for the storm to about two inches throughout the valley, but no slides were reported because the rain was falling gently. Heavy winds were reported in the mountains, but for the most part damage was limited.

The storm did loosen a boulder along Mt. Baldy Road near Baldy Village. It rolled off a mountain and struck a car driven by Eugene Caskey. His passenger, Sylvia Caskey, 29, of 1140 E. D. St., Ontario, was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital, where she was treated for leg injuries and then released.

There was some minor flooding reported throughout the valley. The worst apparently was at the intersection of Pipeline Avenue and the Corona Expressway near Chino and at Bon View and Frances avenues in Ontario.

A Pomona man suffered injuries in a storm related accident early today, when his pickup collided with a sedan on the San Bernardino Freeway west of Ganesha Boulevard.

Ira Baldwin, 23, of 16555 S. Palomares St., was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and later transferred to the County-USC Medical Center.

The accident occurred as William Danks Jr., 23, of Santa Ana was driving west on the freeway and came upon Baldwin's vehicle, which was traveling in a northerly direction across the westbound lanes, said highway patrolmen.

Danks was unable to stop or take evasive action, due to the speed and wet pavement, and his vehicle struck Baldwin's pickup broadside, said officers. Baldwin's vehicle then came to rest against a hillside.

Glauthier S.D. Man of Year

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Correspondent

"How nice it is to live in a small town where you can walk down the street after dark without fear of being mugged," San Dimas's "Man of The Year" Ted Glauthier said.

Civic leader-businessman Glauthier tossed back the verbal accolade to fellow San Dimans who had just named him "Man of The Year" at San Dimas Chamber of Commerce annual dinner at San Dimas Canyon Golf Course clubhouse Thursday night.

Moments later, Glauthier broke up the audience of more than 100 as Jean Lindaman, executive secretary to Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist. read a laudatory citation from Lloyd to Glauthier.

"Thanks," Glauthier told Mrs. Lindaman. "This almost makes me want to change my registration."

Dinner Chairman Dr. Lowell Godfrey, a San Dimas dentist and chairman of the selection committee, said he had to stage a ruse to get Glauthier to the dinner.

As of dinner reservation deadline, Glauthier had not purchased dinner tickets. Dr. Godfrey got him to come on the ploy of leading the flag salute and benediction preceding dinner.

Selection was kept secret until after dinner.

Cited with Glauthier with plaques from the city and chamber was Jack Carruthers, native San Diman and longtime valley businessman who himself was winner of the award in 1966.

Pomona Superior Court Judge Tom Nuss cited Carruthers' long career as a businessman and civic leader in San Dimas and as one of the prime movers in winning cityhood for San Dimas.

Dr. Godfrey, tantalizingly strung along the audience with a history of Glauthier without mentioning his name until later clues left no doubt who was recipient of the 1975 award.

MAN OF THE YEAR

Ted Glauthier, right, was revealed as San Dimas Man of the Year at a Thursday night dinner. Jack Carruthers, left, was honored for his service as Chamber of Commerce manager. Dr. Lowell Godfrey, center, announced the awards.

Native Pennsylvanian Glauthier was born in 1916 and educated in the Keystone State. Godfrey said Glauthier was so patriotic, he married his wife of 35 years Dec. 7, 1941 — the day Japanese forces attacked Pearl Harbor. At the time, Glauthier had just entered service and served as an artillery officer with the Army throughout World War II.

Following the war, he sold cleaning shop equipment in Arizona and California settling in San Dimas 25 years ago where he opened a cleaning shop of his own. Later, Glauthier sold his shop and became an insurance agent specializing in the field of estate planning.

His civic contributions include service on the San Dimas Elementary School District board before it became Bonita Unified School District, a charter city councilman serving two terms ending in 1968, service on the Mt. San Antonio College advisory board, president of San Dimas Chamber of Commerce in 1953-54 and 1973-74, chairman of San Dimas Civic Center Authority, American Legion and Red Cross volunteer work and Pomona moderator for the Congregational Church.

Carruthers, who has served as chamber manager the past 3½ years, plans extensive traveling with his wife before returning to San Dimas and retirement. Judge Nuss said he hopes San Dimas can coax Carruthers back into some line of civic work once he returns.

Bank holdup witness tells of Patty holding gun, swearing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After twice watching a two-minute film of herself toting a rifle at a bank robbery, Patricia Hearst listened quietly as a witness recalled "looking right down the barrel" of her sawed-off carbine and falling to the floor in fear.

James Norton, a recreational therapist, testified Thursday that Miss Hearst was a peppery, foul-mouthed desperado who was the first one in the bank the day of the robbery.

Norton, called to the stand by U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., was scheduled to undergo cross-examination today, and chief defense attorney F. Lee Bailey said it would be "lengthy."

Norton was the second witness to testify Thursday that the newspaper heiress shouted obscenities when she and four Symbionese Liberation Army members held up the Hibernia Bank here April 15, 1974, two months after the tiny band of terrorists kidnaped her.

Norton said he was about to deposit a check when Miss Hearst burst through the front door of the bank and pointed a carbine at him.

Avoiding a profanity he said he heard Miss Hearst utter, Norton quoted her as saying: "'Get on the ground, or I'll blow your dash head off, your brains out,' or something like that.

Browning held up a brown-barreled military carbine and asked if it was similiar to the one used by Miss Hearst. Norton replied that it was.

The highlight of the first day of testimony was the showing of a two-minute film of the robbery pieced together by an FBI agent from 800 still photos taken by the bank's two surveillance cameras.

In the eerie and jerky footage, Miss Hearst is seen sprinting to the center of the bank lobby and bouncing from foot to foot as the other four bandits moved in precision to other areas.

Twice, she glanced over her shoulder at Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze, the SLA leader who died along with five other SLA members, including three who helped robbed the bank, during a shootout with Los Angeles police a month after the holdup.

Once, Miss Hearst adjusted the harness that held her carbine and toward the end motioned for SLA member Camilla Hall to leave the bank. She followed DeFreeze out, running sideways while keeping her rifle pointed toward customers and tellers.

The jury sat enraptured as the whirl of the projector was the only sound in the hushed coutroom. federal marshals near the defendant appeared edgy in the darkened courtroom, and their eyes constantly roamed for anything awry.

When the lights went up, the pale 21-year-old Miss Hearst nervously fingered her lips and quickly took a sip of water. She stared at the surface of the defense table.

Nine witnesses were called by the prosecution Thursday. Bailey had no questions for four of them.

Miss Hearst, on trial on armed bank robbery charges, was flanked by six attorneys. She faces a maximum sentence of 35 years in prison if convicted.

A 68-year-old man who was a guard at the bank the day of the heist, Edward Shea, testified that Miss Hearst threatened customers. "The first person who puts up his head, I'll blow his head off," he quoted her as saying.

Shea pointed to the defendant and identified her as the one who made the comment. Bailey, however, tried during cross-examination to convince Shea that SLA member Nancy Ling Perry had uttered the obscenity.

He pointed out that Mrs. Perry was about the same size as Miss Hearst and he asked the defendant to stand. Bailey then asked Shea to describe Miss Hearst's height and weight.

"About 5 feet 6 and 120 pounds," Shea replied. Miss Hearst, who is 5 feet 3 and weighs only 95 pounds, turned her head and snickered as she sat down.

In an effort to discredit Shea's testimony, Bailey established that the witness had a long-standing hearing problem that required surgery after the robbery.

Shea also had difficulty recalling statements he made to FBI agents who interviewed him the day after the holdup. Bailey quoted at length from a prepared report of that interview and asked Shea if he remembered saying such. Frequently, Shea did not.

In other developments, two SLA members arrested on the same day as Miss Hearst in San Francisco last Sept. 18 said in Los Angeles they wanted a joint trial with her. William and Emily Harris, as well as Miss Hearst, have been charged with kidnap, robbery and assault stemming from a May 1974 shooting incident and the abduction of a youth in the aftermath.

The Harrises said Thursday that Miss Hearst was "far from the weak, hysterical little pampered heiress that her family tried to characterize her as" and that after being kidnaped she stayed with the SLA "on her own initiative and free choice."

Also, the Chicago Tribune reported Thursday that Miss Hearst was given a chance to return to her family a month after her Feb. 4, 1974, kidnaping but refused.

The Tribune quoted a manuscript that federal sources say was prepared by Miss Hearst and the Harrises.

Three shot in school riot

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — "It's killing the school — it's going to be like this for a long time," says a 16-year-old high school quarterback shot in the leg during a four-hour riot triggered by a feud between black and white students.

Authorities closed Escambia High School today after the rock-throwing and club-swinging melee Thursday over the school's nickname, "Rebels."

Three white students suffered minor gunshot wounds, 27 other persons were treated for injuries at local hospitals and five adults and three juveniles were arrested.

Escambia football quarterback Keith Hughes was shot in the left thigh as a group of whites exchanged taunts with a smaller group of blacks.

Sirica has heart attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors treating John J. Sirica say the Watergate judge is resting comfortably today following a massive heart attack that left him hospitalized in critical condition.

Sirica, credited with using his power as a U.S. District Court judge to dig out the facts of the Watergate scandal, collapsed Thursday while delivering a speech on the professional ethics of lawyers.

Doctors' rates to go up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Doctors say the end of the five-week slowdown protesting soaring malpractice rates signals the beginning of higher fees for their patients.

Doctors in Southern California began to schedule elective surgeries Thursday, and a spokesman said new malpractice premiums paid during the slowdown will be passed along to patients.

Many doctors have announced plans to raise their fees by 20 to 30 per cent because of insurance premium increases of up to 327 per cent, said Dr. Walter Dishell of the United Physicians of California.

Farm labor board to end

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says his farm labor board will go out of business today because "what we need and don't have is good will and trust on all sides."

The Democratic governor defended the controversial board Thursday from grower charges that it is biased and incompetent in administering elections between rival Teamster and United Farm Worker forces.

Brown also continued to insist that he will not revamp the board or rewrite his farm labor law to get the legislature to give him emergency funds to keep the agency in business after 5 p.m. today.

Ford signs rail measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's railroads are now free to raise and lower some freight rates under a new law that reverses the trend toward government regulation of the carriers

The rate provisions of $6.4-billion rail measure that President Ford signed Thursday won't be felt for at least a month. The law also provides funds for the reorganization of seven northeastern railroads.

The President called the rate provision "the first significant reform of transportation regulation by any administration or Congress."

The new law gives all railroads the right to raise and lower freight fares by 7 per cent per year without first getting approval from the Interstate Commerce Commission. However, it requires that the railroads give 30 days notice on any fare changes.

It also requires the ICC to determine in the next 240 days where railroads have market dominance. At the end of that period, railroads which face extensive competition — as defined by the ICC — on a route or for a commodity will be allowed to raise or lower rates as much as they wish so long as they do not go below the cost of offering the service. The government will depend on competition to keep the rates from going too high.

Toll in Guatemala quake: 6,000 dead, 40,000 hurt

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP) — The U.N. Disaster Relief Organization — UNDRO — estimated today that nearly 6,000 persons died and 40,000 were injured in Wednesday's earthquake in Guatemala as the United States began a 17-plane airlift of aid to the devastated country.

A U.N. spokesman in Geneva said the estimate, much higher than that by officials in Guatemala City, came from UNDRO representatives in Guatemala who reported about 800 dead in Guatemala City and about 5,000 in other areas of the country.

Guatemala's National Emergency Committee estimated the toll at 2,500 to 3,000 dead, 15,000 injured and 200,000 homeless.

Sources close to the committee said the casualty estimates were conservative.

The committee said it had information from 80 per cent of the area hit hardest by the quake, a region which stretched across 75 per cent of the nation of 6 million people.

An American survey team from the Panama Canal Zone flew over the country in helicopters Thursday, locating the worst damage in a region north and northwest of Guatemala City.

The U.S. Embassy said the survey confirmed the total destruction of several cities, including Joyabaj, population 32,000; Tecpan, 24,000; and Patzicia, 11,000. The town of Chimaltenango, 20,000 population, was 98 per cent leveled.

The emergency committee said other towns leveled by the quake were Comalapa, 18,000; El Progreso, 12,000, and Zaragosa, 8,000, and that many smaller towns and villages suffered the same fate.

"Up to Wednesday, it did not look so bad because all we could see was Guatemala City. Today, it's an entirely different situation," an embassy spokesman said.

No deaths or injuries were reported among the estimated 5,000 Americans living in Guatemala or visiting there as tourists. But hundreds of Guatemalans were believed dead here in the capital, where slum districts in the center of the city were hit hardest. Adobe huts and shops were flattened, but most major buildings were left standing.

A massive relief effort was under way from the United States as well as from neighboring countries, which suffered varying degrees of damage but had no reported deaths and few injuries.

The U.S. Embassy said 16 big C141 transport planes from American bases began landing at the rate of one an hour at Guatemala City's international airport Thursday night.

They could be heard flying low over the city as thousands bedded down in the streets outside their demolished homes. A C5A, the world's largest airplane, was due this morning.

U.S. aid included a 100-bed hospital manned by 25 doctors that was airlifted from Ft. Sill, Okla., and 500 family tents, 500 pints of blood plasma, 5,000 doses of antibiotics, a dozen 3,000-gallon water storage tanks, electric power generators, pumps and other supplies.

The U.S. Embassy also reported that CARE, the relief agency, was beginning to distribute 11 million pounds of food that had been stockpiled in Guatemalan warehouses for emergencies in Central America.

Hundreds of thousands of poor people in Guatemala City spent their second night on the streets, sleeping in makeshift tents and lean-tos thrown up in front of their devastated homes. A broken wooden door or shutter often served as a bed. Lucky ones put mattresses on the pavement, thick with dust kicked up by the earthquake and aftershocks every few hours since early Wednesday.

Tired women, dazed by fear or grieving for dead relatives and friends, cooked dinner over small fires made with wood chopped from crumbled buildings. Coal was scarce, and many had no heat to ward off the night's chill.

House ends gas price controls on independents

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House approved a measure that would boost natural gas prices slightly by removing controls from independent producers, but it rejected administration plans to deregulate the big producers.

The House voted Thursday to lift federal price controls from an estimated 3,500 independent producers but to retain price controls on the 25 to 30 largest producers and extend the ceilings to gas transactions within individual states. Those intrastate sales have hitherto been unregulated.

Recover $10,000 in stolen goods

Two Upland men have been arrested in connection with the Jan. 29 armed robbery of five women at the Chapparel Heights Mobile Home Park in Alta Loma and have recovered nearly $10,000 in suspected stolen property, West End sheriff's deputies reported.

Sheriff's detectives said Ricky Dean Barnes, 19, of 183 Armstrong Way, Apt. B, and Marshall Herbert Ansley, 20, of 195 Armstrong Way, have been booked in the West End Jail for investigation of armed robbery and possession of stolen property.

Officers said they received information from an anonymous caller about the Jan. 29 robbery, including the suspect's names. Detectives after showing the women victims of the robbery a series of police photographs, search and arrest warrants were issued for the two men.

Detectives said the two men were arrested in their homes and a "truckload" of stolen property recovered. Detectives this morning are attempting to locate the owners of the suspected stolen property that included televisions, stereos and stereo equipment, ski equipment, and cameras. Several persons who claimed some of the property are from the San Dimas area, detectives said.

A VALINDA man has pleaded to a variety of sex offenses charged against him by authorities of three jurisdictions.

He is Jerry Alonzo Romero, 25, who entered the plea when arraigned before Pomona Superior Court Judge Howard D. McClain. McClain scheduled Romero's trial for March 17 and ordered him held in lieu of $30,000 bail.

Charges against Romero include burglary, rape, attempted rape, and other sex offenses. He is accused of crimes in Walnut, San Dimas, Upland, West Covina, Whittier and Norwalk. All the cases have been consolidated for trial in Pomona with the exception of those in San Bernardino County.

Investigators said they suspect Romero of being the man responsible for offenses committed against selected housewives whose homes were for sale. The women's attacker gained entrance to their homes by posing as a prospective buyer, sheriff's detectives said.

West End sheriff's deputies, following a short foot pursuit in downtown ONTARIO Wednesday, arrested a 17-year-old youth and a Montclair man who allegedly attempted to sell stolen cameras at Gordon Ayers Camera Shop on Holt Boulevard.

The youth and Patrick Michael Marigliano, 22, of Montclair were booked in West End Jail this morning for investigation of burglary.

Sheriff's detectives said they received a call from Lee Thomas Wood Wednesday who said the manager of the camera shop told him that two men were attempting to sell his camera and camera equipment at the store.

Detectives said they went to the Ontario camera shop after the call and saw the two suspects leaving. The officers called the men to halt but they bolted and ran from the rear of the store. After a short chase the men were captured. Detectives said that during the chase the youth dropped a pistol that had been stolen in an Upland burglary.

Detectives Tuesday evening had been called to Wood's home to investigate a burglary. Detectives learned that burglars had broken into the home at 8715 Hillside Ave., Alta Loma, and made off with 13 rifles and shotguns, a diamond ring, television sets, and camera equipment, with a total value of over $8,000.

LA VERNE police Thursday night booked a Covina man they claim ran right out of his shoes when pursued by drug store employes after the theft of two cameras.

The suspect, Daniel Michael Tilton, 23, was booked on suspicion of grand theft and being under the influence of heroin. His alleged companion in the theft, Vito Anthony Caracci, 26, also was arrested and was booked on suspicion of grand theft.

The incident occurred Thursday afternoon at Clark's Drugs, 1479 Foothill Blvd. Employes there followed two men from the store after one was seen putting cameras valued at $267 in his jacket pocket. One fled on foot, running so fast he lost his shoes. The other drove off in a car after the employes were driven back inside the store by heavy rain.

Tilton and Caracci were linked to the case by a license number and descriptions given police. Officers said one of the stolen cameras was recovered with their arrest.

Tot sleeping on couch with mother smothers to death

A 3-week old infant smothered to death this morning while sleeping with her mother on a living room couch at 922 E. Ninth St. in Upland, police reported.

Crystal Michelle Ball, born Jan. 12, died of apparent suffocation, according to the San Bernardino County Coroner's Office. Firemen were called to the apartment about 5:30 a.m. but were unable to revive the infant with oxygen.

The infant's mother, Blanche Marie Ball, 16, staying with her father, told police she went to sleep on the living room couch with her daughter lying next to her. She said when she awoke, the baby had stopped breathing.

Police believe the mother may have accidently rolled over on the child as she was sleeping.

State claims bias against family farm in water dispute

FRESNO (AP) — A state report says property owners in the huge Westlands Water District should be required to be residents to encourage family farming.

The U.S. Bureau of Reclamation should make that a stipulation its water service contract with the district, the state Department of Water Resources said.

"The clear purpose of reclamation law since its inception has been to promote small family farms," the report said.

"Administrative disregard of the residency requirement is clearly contrary to that purpose."

Critics have charged that large corporations and farm syndicates have retained control of much of the district's 600,000 acres in western Fresno and Kings counties despite numerous sales of small parcels to meet federal reclamation law. Use of federal water is limited to 160 acres under one ownership.

The U.S. Senate's small business committee will hold hearings on Westlands Feb. 16 and 17 in Fresno.

Details of the state report were published by the Fresno Bee Thursday. Portions were prepared by the state departments of agriculture and employment and the governor's Office of Planning and Research as well as water resources.

The report contends $600 million spent for distribution lines from San Luis Reservoir and $1.8 billion in subsidies will benefit only large landowners unless policy is changed.

"Such public expense can only be justified when a fundamental public interest is served," the report states.

"Enormous profits are being made in Westlands, but the purpose of the Reclamation Act is not being served."

The report also recommends eliminating a provision in the bureau's contract with Westlands that allows large landowners to assume recordable contracts of other farmers.

Water rates should be doubled to $15 per acre foot to pay off capital costs, the report adds.

And, it warns, water quality in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta could be damaged in dry years because Westlands has first claim on 1.16 million acre feet of water annually.

"Amendments should be made to the contract making the delivery of water to the district secondary to meeting delta water quality standards," the report concludes.

SCOTT A. LAY, son of Mr. and Mrs. Myron H. Lay of 3012 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, is undergoing special training in Air Force aircraft maintenance at Sheppard AFB, Tex. Lay is a 1975 Bonita High School graduate.

Job barrier linked to ex-con crimes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The reluctance of employers to hire them is the main reason why many ex-convicts return to crime, says a former attorney who did time in San Quentin Prison for embezzlement in 1968.

John Ardmore, head of the National Alliance of Businessmen's ex-offender program, said at a conference here Wednesday that hiring ex-convicts made good business sense because the upkeep of each prisoner costs the California taxpayer $10,000 annually.

He said 70 per cent of ex-prisoners turn to crime because they can't find jobs and they eventually return to prison.

"Half the state and county governments do not hire ex-offenders. The U.S. Postal Service will not hire them and the California Department of Corrections has fewer than 50 on its staff of 8,000 employees," said Ardmore.

Fred W. Garry, president of Rohr Industries, said his firm hires former prisoners and they had been found to be strongly motivated to succeed.

"At first they need more supervision than other employes. Initially, they are distrustful and have little knowledge of such work practices as promptness, wearing identification badges and observing on-the-job safety," he commented.

But "with sound personnel practices, many ex-offenders make good and dedicated employes," he added.

Levi to investigate Mexico drug case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — U.S. Attorney General Edward H. Levi has agreed to investigate allegations of wrongdoing by U.S. drug agents working in Mexico, according to a spokesman for Rep. Barry M. Goldwater Jr., R-Calif.

Goldwater's office said Wednesday the request came out of a hearing the Woodland Hills Republican held here last month.

A spokesman for Goldwater said one of the cases cited was that of Pierre Roland Dupuy who testified he and two friends were tortured in the presence of U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agents following their arrest in Mexico. Dupuy said his plane was shot up after landing and that he was slighly injured.

Dupuy has accused U.S. agents of "setting up" his arrest and denies any connection with drug trafficking.

A Goldwater aide said when the congressman's office sent the DEA a request for records in the case, including a waiver of privacy form from Dupuy, the agency replied he could only deal directly with Dupuy himself.

Black writers of history is topic

The Claremont Public Library will share in the celebration of African American History Week (expanded this Bicentennial year to one month) Wednesday when Lorenz Graham speaks on "Black Writers of History."

The Los Angeles County Public Library system will initiate the celebration with a two-day festival Saturday and Sunday at the Willowbrook Library, the site of the original library in the county system.

Story-telling, puppet shows, craft demonstrations and music will be presented.

The library is located at 2326 E. El Segundo Blvd., Compton.

The festival will be held Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m.

Graham, author, lecturer and consultant, has written several books for children portraying lives of black people in America and Africa.

A Claremont resident, Graham has traveled to many nations, including the People's Republic of China. His talk will begin at 7:30 p.m.

His collection of African artifacts and 19th century books will be on display at the Claremont library during February.

Posters 'smiling' at Montclair Plaza

Posters and puppets will be featured at the Montclair Plaza today at 7:30 p.m. during the conclusion of a poster contest sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of the Tri-County Dental Society.

In observance of Dental Health Week, students from 16 schools made posters based on the theme: "Smile, America! Be Free from Dental Disease."

Two grand prizes will be awarded, one for grades first through third and the second for grades fourth through sixth.

Elementary schools participating include Magnolia and Upland, Upland; Arroyo and Cypress, Ontario; Monte Vista and Moreno, Montclair; Alcott and Madison, Pomona; El Rancho and Glenmeade, Chino; Carnelian, Alta Loma; Oakmont and Sycamore, Claremont; La Verne Heights, La Verne; Gladstone, San Dimas; and Cucamonga, Cucamonga.

Concluding the poster program will be the puppet show, "Adam's Apple."

Missing girl, 5, found OK

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — A 5-year-old girl taken from her Long Beach home Sunday has been found alive and well but a little damp by police here.

Officers said they found Kerry Ann Toney "damp but in good shape" Wednesday, along with the 16-year-old girl who allegedly took her. Police declined to identify the girl because of her age but she reportedly had called herself Maria Sanchez.

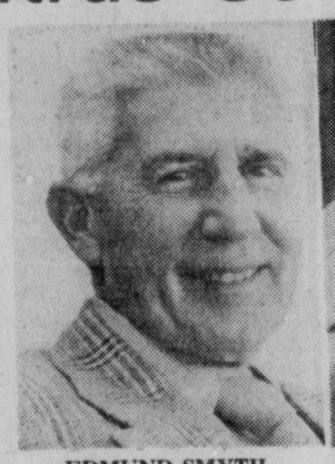

Sgt. Francis Lopez said Kerry Ann and the teen-ager were picked up after several persons reported seeing them in West Santa Barbara. The descriptions of the pair had been broadcast over radio stations after authorities learned the teenager may have been going there.

Madsen named replacement

Smith retiring from Citrus College

EDMUND SMYTH

DONALD L. MADSEN

Edmund "Buzzy" Smyth will retire as vice president and assistant superintendent for student personnel at Citrus College on Feb. 25.

Donald L. Madsen will assume the position the next day.

Smyth, who has served the college nearly 40 years as a coach, physical education teacher and administrator, will be honored at a retirement dinner at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 25 at the Glendora Country Club. The dinner is open to friends.

He has been the assistant superintendent for student personnel since 1966. His first appointment to the college staff was in 1937 when he became the football coach following his graduation from San Diego State College.

Smyth's ties with the area go back even further, however, as he was a Citrus Union High School and Citrus Junior College student.

In 1971, Smyth was cited as Glendora's Citizen of the Year. He served as a Glendora councilman for eight years and is a member of the Glendora Kiwanis Club.

Smyth and his wife, Mary Jean, will move to Catalina Island where he will operate a charter boat service out of Avalon.

Madsen, who began his career in education as a teacher in the Sacramento Valley, has served as dean of extended day and summer school at Citrus College since 1964.

He formerly served as director of personnel in the Glendora Unified School District and as Glendora High School principal.

From 1953 to 1959, Madsen was boy's vice principal and assistant principal in the Citrus Unified High School District. He was appointed as administrative assistant in the Citrus College personnel office in 1960.

Madsen holds a B.A. degree from UC Berkeley and an M.A. degree from the University of Redlands. He was presented a Freedom Foundation Award at Valley Forge, Pa., for his service as an outstanding teacher.

Madsen and his wife, Clara, reside in Glendora.

Will run first

Despite legends that you can't drown in the Okefenokee Swamp because an alligator will swallow you first, a gator actually will more likely turn tail and run than attack a human, National Geographic says.

INCOME TAX ASSISTANCE . . . Persons trained by the Internal Revenue Service Volunteer Income Tax Assistance Program will be at the Ontario Library and DeAnza Community Center through April 14 to help low income and elderly people prepare their income tax returns.

The service is free, said Joe Randolph, senior citizens tax consultant. Qualified personnel will be at the Ontario Library from 9:30 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. on Mondays, 7 to 9 p.m. on Wednesdays and 9:30 a.m. to noon on Saturdays. For more information, persons may phone 984-2758, extension 23.

PRESIDENT HONORED — Carl Masingale, president of the Chino Basin Municipal Water District's Board of Directors, was honored recently for his 15 years of service on the board.

Masingale, first elected to the board in 1960, represents the Cucamonga and Alta Loma sections of the district. He has served as president since August 1967.

The district is responsible for collection and disposal of liquid industrial wastes, treatment of domestic liquid wastes and distribution of supplemental water from the Metropolitan Water District.

NATIONAL POST — San Bernardino County Supervisor Daniel Mikesell has been reappointed chairman of the National Association of Counties' Transportation Policy Steering Committee.

He is the first to receive an appointment which extends to five terms.

The national committee discusses local issues in all areas of transportation in the 50 states, said Mikesell. "We consider the major problems in new highways, waterways, airports, public transit and railways.

"Our group then presents a platform to committees in the 3,100 counties. These counties, through our steering committee, have been well-received by Congress. They seem to feel that we have done our research and that we represent the people in matters of transportation," he added.

Local projects have done well, said Mikesell. It was this committee that gave testimony in Congressional hearings that led to passing of the Aviation Trust Fund in 1970. "This fund made it possible for us to improve and modernize our local airports without a local tax levy or bond issue."

SENIOR CITIZENS DANCE — The West End YMCA will conduct dances for senior citizens the first and third Fridays of each month between 8:30 and 11:30 p.m. The first dance will be held Friday.

Music will be provided by Tony DeCarlo's Orchestra. Refreshments will be served. A nominal fee will be charged.

RECYCLING PROGRAM AT BROOKSBURY .. The children at Booksbury School in Ontario have been participating in the "Pitch In" campaign sponsored by the Foothill Beverage Co.

On Feb. 13, the children will be shown a film on the subject of litter, and recycling starring Jonathan Winters.

The public is invited to view the film as well as take part in the school's "Pitch In" drive. Anyone wishing to bring aluminum cans to Booksbury may drop them off on Mondays or Fridays between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. The can drive will continue until March 1.

For further information persons may call Booksbury School at 984-1004.

PERSONNEL RECORDS — Under a new state law, employes have the right to examine the personnel and employe records maintained by their employers as they relate to qualification of employment, promotion, additional compensation or disciplinary action.

Not included under the law, S.B. 955, are records relating to investigation of possible criminal offenses and letters of reference.

COLLEGE GRANTS — Grants totaling $13,200 were awarded to colleges and organizations in the valley area recently by the California Community Foundation.

Receiving grants were La Verne College, $1,441; Pomona College, $2,882; Family Service of Pomona Valley, $875; Old Baldy Council of the Boy Scouts of America, $6,950; Harvey Mudd College, $100; and Claremont Men's College, $1,000.

PROFITS GAIN — Standard Brands Paint Co. recorded record sales and profits for the three-month period ending Dec. 31.

Sales were up 20 per cent from $25.0 million to $29.9 million, while profits after taxes were up 30 per cent from $1.7 million to $2.3 million or 44 cents per share of common stock.

GIANT DUMBCANE — This plant may be placed at any location in the home where you have medium light intensity.

Gardeners check list

Tuberous Begonias will make their appearance in nurseries this month. Set them in flats of moist peat moss to sprout them; then plant in flats of leaf mold, peat and sand. When the tops have about two to three inches of growth later in the spring, plant them in the shade garden. Or use them in pots for portable color this summer.

Be sure to feed lawns this month to give them a good start as the weather warms up.

Give your fruit trees a dormant spray to control insects and fungus diseases. Prune your roses and spray them too.

Shasta Daisies should be divided every second or third year to maintain their vigor. Replant the sturdiest of the divisions.

February is a good time to plant ground covers. The Trailing African Daisy is a free-flowering choice for level garden areas or on slopes.

Home and garden

Enjoy green plants in a big way

In recent months consumer interest in green plants has blossomed. Nearly every home, apartment or office boasts at least one spot of green and millions of Americans are experiencing for the first time the pleasure of watching their plants grow and thrive. Most of the plants purchased have been small varieties suitable for a table or desk top, hanging baskets or terrariums. These small plants are lovely and grace any decor, but perhaps you yearn for something a little more dramatic.

The Society of American Florists reminds us that plants, like people, come in all sizes. The big, beautiful foliage plants that you see in shopping malls, banks and other public places can be yours to enjoy at home. Most varieties are hardy and easy to care for and can adjust to your own particular lighting and climatic conditions. Sizes range from the smaller three and four-foot plants to the really big boys — those which reach a height of seven feet or more. Their possibilities in interior decorating are myriad.

It started in Victorian times when every hotel lobby had at least one palm tree. More often than not the plant was a Chamaedorea elegans 'bella' (shaa-mee-DOR-ee-ah EL-e-ganz BEL-ah) or Neanthe Bella Palm. These plants are still popular today due largely to the fact that they are extremely hardy, require little light and little care. They are most generally available in the three-foot size and blend nicely with other plants both larger and smaller. Also in the palm family is the Kentia variety which has all the attributes of the Neantbe Bella plus a height of up to seven feet. A new variety of palm just gaining popularity, is the Chamaedorea seifritzii. This plant is a bit more delicate than its cousins, looking rather like bamboo, and can reach 12 feet, but is readily available in six to seven-foot sizes. It too is very durable, but needs a little more light than the others mentioned here.

The Rubber Tree plant is as familiar as the 'potted palm'. In more formal circles this plant is known as Ficus elastica 'Decora' (FYE-kuss ee-LAS-ti-kuh de-CORE-ah), but regardless of the name it is easy to grow, does not require too large a container and seldom needs repotting. There are many varieties of the Ficus, but the largest of them all is the Weeping Fig (Ficus benjamina exotica — FYE-kuss ben-jam-EE-na eg-ZOT-ik-uh) which can reach the lofty height of 18 feet. They are generally found in four to seven-foot sizes, and are suitable for locations with good light.

The Umbrella Tree or Schefflera (Brassaia actinophylla — BRASS-i-ah act-in-oh-FIGH-lah) is another popular, easy-care plant. It ranges in size from two to eight feet, and like the Weeping Fig, prefers good light. It can be maintained in a low to medium light, but the plants tend to become 'leggy'. The Dumbcane or Dieffenbachia amoena (deef-in-BOCK-ee-uh uh-MEE-nah) is another very hardy favorite, with a sturdy trunk and large varigated leaves. It should be near a sunny window and will grow from a minimum of fiftten inches up to six or seven feet.

There are many more varieties of plants available and no doubt some of them will be more pleasing to your eye than the ones discussed here.

These big plants can serve many purposes in the home — they can be used as room dividers, as the focal point in a room which lacks an architectural eye-catcher, in a corner which needs 'something' but is too small for the usual table and lamp. If you have an enclosed patio or a sun porch, several large plants will balance and compliment the small plants and hanging baskets already there.

Plants for your Valentine

How to say 'Be Mine'

The increased regard for the environment makes living plants the most well received and personalized gift. Valentine's Day, Saturday, the day reserved for communicating the message of love, is a favorite day to exchange gifts of plants. Liberate the men in your life and send them a blooming azalea or cineraria. Boyfriends, sons, and fathers all enjoy the color and liveliness of indoor plants and, who knows, when the weather warms up a bit your valentine gift may find a permanent home in the garden.

To keep you out of anyone's dog house there are bare root roses to revitalize any rose garden or start a new one. Your local nursery may still have the 1976 All-American Rose Selections to help you celebrate Valentine's Day and commemorate the new year. Let the language of roses speak for you this season.

And since Valentine's Day is on a Saturday this year, why not use the occasion to plant a garden full of spring and summer bulbs for your valentine. Or spruce up the flower beds with ready to plant pansies, violas, calendulas and fairy primroses.

On Valentine's Day a gift of a flourishing houseplant will go on reminding someone that you care throughout the year. Make a hit with passionate bromeliads from the tropics. Some varieties display their blooms and color for up to three months.

Spread aid to richer areas, too, Chino told

Several Chino residents have urged the City Council to use federal Community Development Act funds in more "prosperous" sections of the city.

Councilmen heard suggestions Tuesday night from residents on how to use $474,000 in federal funds the city is scheduled to receive for 1976. The council adjourned the public hearing to Feb. 17, when further comments are expected.

Hearings were held last year on the CDA funding, and priorities for a five-year period were established. However, the priorities are subject to change if desired by the community, according to city officials.

The bulk of nearly $2 million in funds to be received through 1979 was targeted for parks, replacement of sewer lines and street improvements in the barrio area.

Residents who addressed the council Tuesday, apparently were from the same group of homeowners opposing the proposed apartment complex at Mountain Avenue and Riverside Drive. They suggested that some consideration be given to the east side of the city.

"I recommend that the council use the funds all over town, and in the more prosperous areas," said Cathy Ohlander, a homeowner. "Judging from what has been happening lately, the money should not only be used in underdeveloped, older sections of Chino."

She called on the council to use funds for parks or community centers in the newer areas of town. "Land for parks should be bought now because it will be too expensive later, and hard to find."

Another resident asked councilmen to use the funds for a traffic signal at Mountain and Riverside, which he called a "dangerous intersection."

Mayor Bob McLeod said the city was "sincere" in asking for opinions from residents on how to use the federal funds. "But there are certain things we can't do." He doubted whether the funds could be used for a traffic signal, but directed City Manager Bob Fast to investigate the possibility.

Councilmen took no action Tuesday. If any changes in the funding priorities are made, they would probably be indicated after the Feb. 17 hearing.

S.B. County opening a family medical clinic in Ontario

San Bernardino County will open Monday a family practice clinic at 324 N. Laural Ave., Ontario.

The clinic will provide a wide range of general medical care to West End residents who previously had to travel to San Bernardino to receive these services.

The office will be open Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. It will be staffed by Dr. Thomas Edwards and Dr. Douglas Spieske who serve on the county's medical staff.

Persons seeking clinic treatment are urged to call the office at 988-1420 for appointments. The clinic will serve the West End communities of Chino, Ontario, Montclair, Upland, Cucamonga, Alta Loma and Fontana.

Those served will be persons on Medi-Cal, Medi-Care and the general public. The patients will be charged.

The medical center will not compete with local physicians but is being established because of a need for additional medical services, county officials emphasized.

Some patients will be referred to local private laboratories, local radiologists, pharmacists and specialists.

With only one medical doctor on duty at a time, the clinic will serve about 25 patients a day, said Robert McDonald of the clinic staff. The county plans to assign resident doctors at the clinic to serve as part of their training.

In announcing the new clinic, county Supervisors Robert Townsend and Daniel Mikesell said this reflects the county's continuing effort to decentralize medical services.

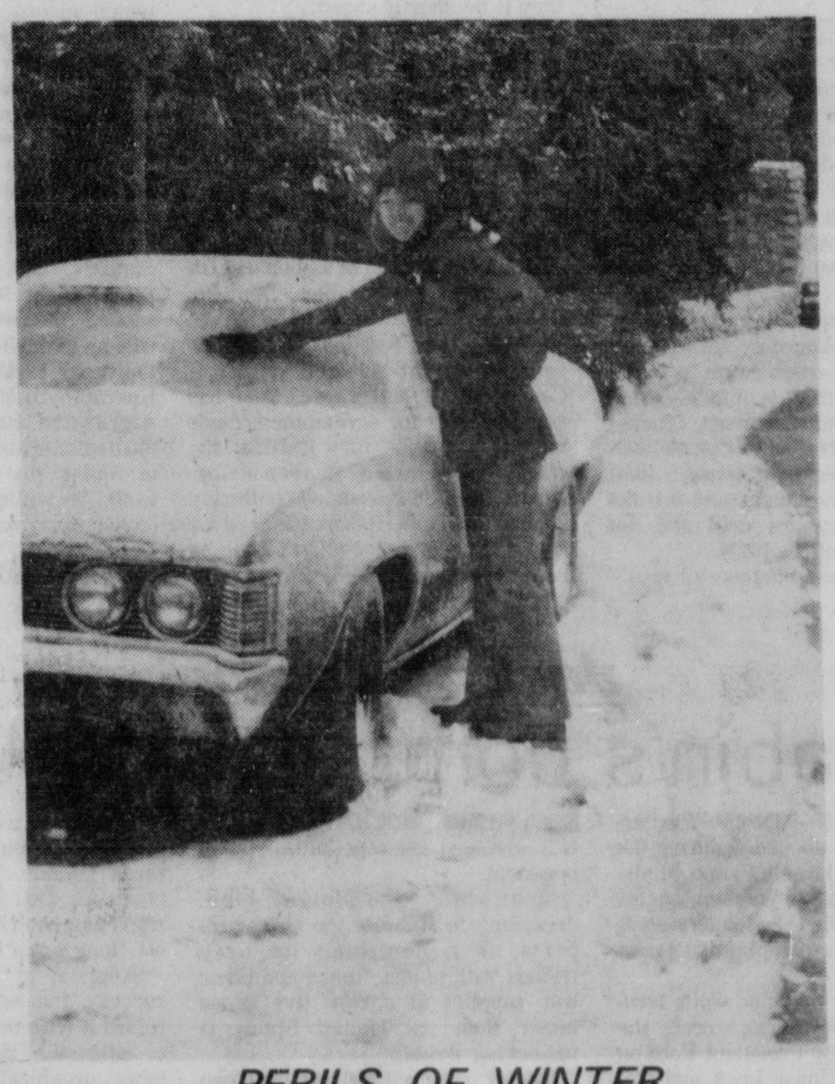

Townsend said the service will be particularly helpful to the elderly, handicapped and low-income patients.

"The clinic will be self-supporting, as is the main medical center, and will bill all patients for service."

A similar clinic is operating in Barstow.

Contribution centers for Guatemala open

Centers have been established in Montclair to collect canned foods, first aid kits, clothes and blankets for shipment to Antigua, Guatemala, which was recently damaged by an earthquake.

Mayor Harold Hayes said emphasis here is being placed on Antigua since it is Montclair's sister city.

Residents wanting to donate these items may take them to the Montclair City Hall, police station, main firestation at Monte Vista Avenue and Arrow Highway, and the fire substation on Monte Vista north of Mission Boulevard.

Persons may also make cash donations at these centers, said Hayes. Checks should be made payable to the Pan American National Bank, Guatemala Relief Fund.

"We will accept these and then send them through the proper channels." Hayes said the other items collected will be taken Monday to the Guatemala Consulate Office in Los Angeles for shipment to that country.

City officials are receiving assistance from various individuals and service clubs, including the Montclair Kiwanis Club and the Montclair Women's Club.

Hayes said Ken Wright, director of the Monte Vista Water District, is obtaining water purification tablets which are in need in Antigua.

In addition, Councilman Paul Jones said the city is seeking funds through the Organization of American States to send possibly two city technicians to assist in rebuilding Antigua.

These would include Wright and Carl Sawtell, the city engineer.

Suspension or work, O-M says

The Ontario-Montclair school board Thursday night adopted a Saturday work program for student troublemakers.

Termed "an alternative to suspension," the measure was tried out last year at Imperial Junior High School and was reported successful. It will now be implemented at De Anza, Serrano, Vernon and Vina Danks junior high schools.

Under the program, parents are given the option of having the student suspended or sending him to the school for two-hour stints on Saturdays to wash walls, desks and lockers, pick up papers, mow weeds and do other custodial chores.

Area Director William Smead reported that Imperial last year had 66 students involved in suspendable offenses. Parents of all but three of these agreed to the alternative to suspension program.

The board meeting was enlivened by a brief concert on dulcimers by Carl Schafer, district music director, and three teachers, showing the uses of the homemade stringed instruments as teaching tools. The teachers — Eileen Eisenhower, Mary Ann Barker and Dave Jones — told how they used the instruments to teach pupils to count, to learn a melody and to play songs. Schafer showed video tapes of the students playing the dulcimers and counting and singing to them.

Rowlander hurt in mishap

A Rowland Heights man was injured slightly in Pomona early Thursday when his car ran off Mission Boulevard south of Phillips Boulevard and hit a utility pole, police reported.

The motorist, Ronald W. Higson, 32, said he felt something go wrong with the car just before the mishap. He did not require immediate medical attention.

Arthritis campaign begins

Over 500 volunteer workers will call door-to-door throughout the valley today, Saturday and Sunday in the largest march ever conducted by the Arthritis Foundation, according to Mrs. Charles Luckman, Los Angeles County neighborhood march chairman, and Mrs. Na Dell Jensen, San Bernardino County chairman.

A once-a-year drive, the weekend march is an "all-out" effort to support and expand arthritis treatment and research centers. Some 70,000 volunteers have been recruited for the Southland drive.

The chairmen said an educational folder which lists arthritis warning signs is left at each household to inform the public about arthritis.

The chairmen reported there are over one million arthritis sufferers in the Southland alone and the Arthritis Foundation funds medical training programs and research in the area.

Pomona Legion plays host

The Charles P. Rowe American Legion Post No. 30 in Pomona will host the 6th Area Caucus of the 16th, 18th, 20th and 24th districts in California on Saturday and Sunday.

Several hundred Legion members will attend, including the California Department commander, Lloyd Higginson. Wally Martinez, past commander of the 6th Area, will be in charge of the program. The 6th Area extends from San Luis Obispo County to the east edge of Los Angeles County.

Entertainment will be provided by Singing Legionnaires of Post No. 30 and the Sons of the American Legion Squadron 30.

A dance will be held Saturday night following the program.

Mobile unit planned by U.P. railroad

Union Pacific Railroad will consolidate the offices of its Pomona and Ontario freight agencies on April 1, and establish a mobile agency to serve shippers in the area, company officials announced.

The mobile unit will replace fixed offices which were opened in the early 1900s. A freight office van, staffed with a traveling agent and equipped with two-way radio and complete office facilities, will serve the valley, said Jack E. Sanford, UP's California division superintendent.

Modern communications and public mobility have outmoded the old concept of a fixed agency, said Sanford.

The new method will in effect, bring the depot to the shipper.

"We actually can serve our customers in each community better and more personally by having our agent call directly on freight shippers and receivers in the territory," Sanford explained.

Inquiries and requests to the mobile agency on a toll-free phone line will be routed through the Union Pacific agency in City of Industry, the van's base station.

The new method of dealing with customer orders will not affect train service or the handling of freight shipments, said Sanford.

The new unit will be the first of its kind on any Southern California line and first for UP in this region.

New C of C exec in Chino

David Bolick, assistant manager of the San Bernardino Chamber of Commerce, will become the new manager of the Chino Valley Chamber of Commerce on Feb. 10.

Bolick's selection was announced by the chamber's board of directors.

The 36-year-old chamber official will be filling a position that has been vacant for five months, since Sean Harker resigned. Harker had only served in the post for two months.

Bolick also has been employed by Pacific Outdoor Advertising and as sales manager for a San Bernardino radio station.

He is married and has one child.

Reading Conference underway

Over 1,100 delegates will attend the 43rd annual Claremont Reading Conference in Claremont today and Saturday.

Another 300 children will take part in a Conference for Young People, an adjunct to the senior conference on the second day.

The reading conference is sponsored by Claremont Graduate School. Theme for the conference this year is "A Little Revolution Now and Then." Most of those attending are teachers.

Elliot W. Eisner, professor of education and art at Stanford University, gave the opening address this morning in Garrison Theater. His topic is "Reading and the Creation of Meaning."

Malcolm P. Douglass, director of the conference and professor of education at CGS, will preside at the sessions.

Other session speakers include Kenneth Goodman, professor of elementary education at the University of Arizona, and Sid Fleischman, author of numerous children's books.

Folly of airing U.S. secrets

No other country has ever, or could ever, go through the kind of public airing of its intelligence apparatus as the United States has in the past few months. Such a thing would be totally unimaginable in the Soviet Union, and not much more conceivable even in the European democracies.

There is no question that in the kind of world we live in, the U.S. must maintain an effective, dependable — and secure — intelligence system.

But while the Congress, the administration and the CIA ponder just how this is to be accomplished, while at the same time giving the people, through their representatives, better oversight and control over the secret undertakings of their government than they have hitherto had, it is essential that we keep this whole matter of intelligence in perspective.

The best intelligence apparatus in the world is utterly useless if those empowered to act upon the information it provides fail to do so, or wish it away, or distort it to make it conform to desired policy or preconceived notions.

Our own recent history provides more than a few examples of this.

Before World War II, the U.S. possessed that dream of all espionage agents, the ability to read the enemy's diplomatic code; in this case the potential enemy was Japan.

Yet during the latter days of 1941, when it was obvious that the Japanese were planning an attack this knowledge was ignored or disbelieved.

Again, in the Vietnam war, the U.S. had abundant and reliable forewarning of the Communist Tet offenseive of 1967. But this information was suppressed because it ran counter to what some people wanted to believe, or wanted the country to believe. And again the penalty was the unnecessary loss of many American, as well as Vietnamese, lives.

For all the reputed brilliance of then-Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara and others directing the war, the nation could have been just as well, or as ill, served if someone had simply stood blindfolded and thrown darts at a list of options.

We must also make the distinction between intelligence gathering, which is absolutely vital and not in dispute in the current discussion, and covert activities aimed at changing certain realities we don't like.

The CIA's role in the overthrow of President Allende of Chile, its alleged assassination plots against various national leaders, its secret financial support of anti-Communist politicians, however anti-democratic they may be, its violations of its charter prohibiting domestic spying, its booby-trapped Castro cigars — the list runs the gamut from the obscene to the ludicrous — all these activities have done more to harm America's real interests and to undermine its security than one can conceive happening if we had no intelligence apparatus at all.

Despite all the soul-searching in Washington these days, the question facing Americans is not really that of how a democracy can have an accountable yet effective intelligence system, without running the risk of constant, damaging leaks of secret information.

Nor is it a matter of the quality or reliability of our intelligence people, although there are also instances of their wrongly evaluating data or having been caught napping.

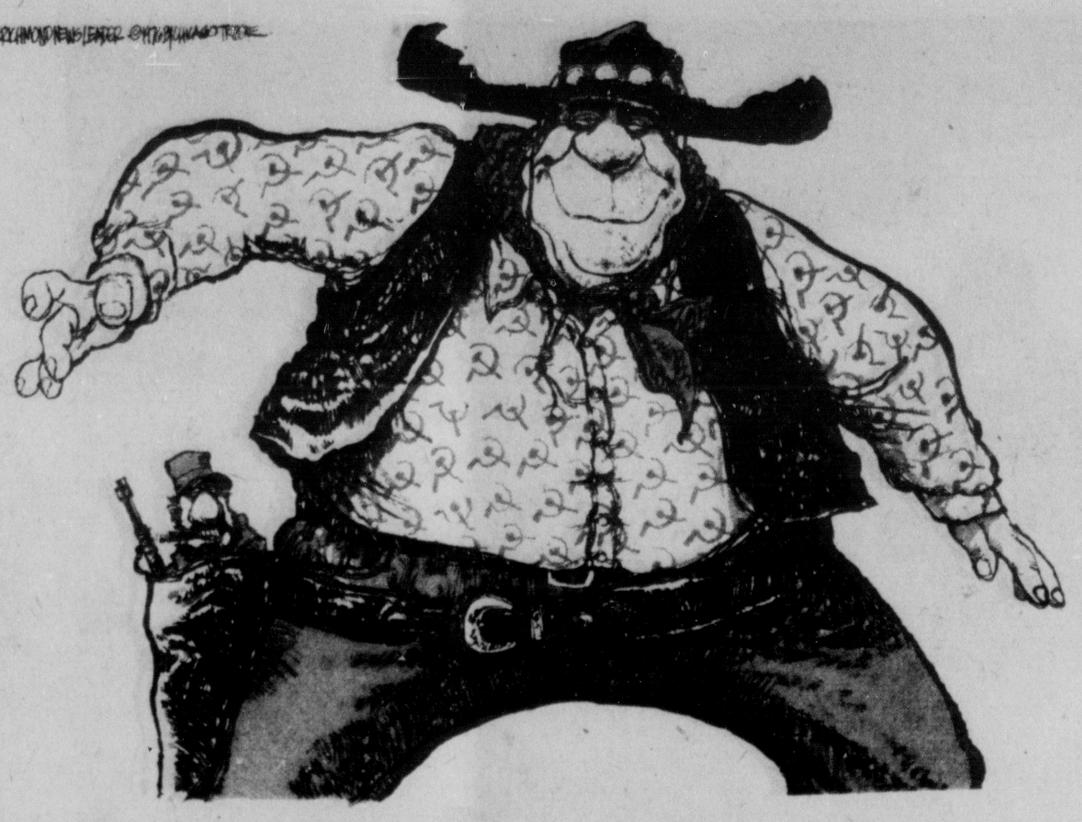

Rather, the question, as it has been throughout history, is the uses or misuses to which a nation puts its intelligence establishment and the military and political information it acquires. And that, of course, ultimately depends upon the wisdom and integrity — nay, the plain common sense — of its leaders.

That requirement alone is enough to give us serious causes for concern about the safety of this Republic.

"There's another road over here, you know."

Peace Conversion

Dear Editor:

There are fewer beggars and chicklet hawkers in the streets here in El Salvador in December and January. For two months of the year the coffee harvests provide jobs at $2.20 a day. For ten months thereafter, unemployment goes up to 65 per cent.

Lack of jobs is devastating to the morale of our people. Prostitution flourishes; alcoholism is epidemic, and only 20 per cent of the children get beyond grade six. Then I read that this May the U.S. Congress will make its final decision whether or not to begin full production of the B-1 bomber which will cost taxpayers a direct $50 to $90 billion to construct and maintain.

As I ponder that figure here in our poor barrio of Lourdes, the words of two elder statesmen come to mind: "Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired, said President Eisenhower, "signifies in the final sense a theft from those who hunger and are not fed, those who are cold and not clothed." (April 16, 1953).

"It is necessary before all else," wrote Pope Paul VI last month, "to provide peace with other weapons — weapons different from those destined to kill and exterminate mankind." (1976 World Peace Message). Employment, it seems to me, is a powerful weapon of peace. And those who would argue that the B-1 will mean jobs should also know they'll be shortchanged.

Because for every billion of federal expenditures spent to create industrial jobs in the civilian sector, the U.S. gains 65,000 jobs, which is 10,000 more than if the same billion were spent in the military sector (e.g., building the B-1).

That's a difference of 18 per cent (Data from Bureau of Labor and Office of the Comptroller, Dept. of Defense). Can the U.S., let alone the world hungry for jobs, afford to squander that 18 per cent? If Congressman Jim Lloyd, who has voted support for development funds for the B-1 thus far, justifies the waste represented by this son of Concorde and SST (whose polluting genes it also inherits) by the need for national security, wouldn't that be better served by making the U.S. a better model of a country that provides job opportunities for all its citizens and not just for those who happen to live in an area of the country that has a company with a prime contract (namely, Rockwell)?

I say, rather than the B-1 bomber, we need peace conversion, which is what Pope Paul is talking about and which means, among other things, that useful jobs in the private sector would be created for defense workers. Peace conversion takes hope in the common sense expressed by former President Eisenhower at Naval College in 1961: "If we . . . put one more dollar in a weapon system than we should, we are weakening the defense of the United States."

But unless Mr. Lloyd can be persuaded otherwise by May, the U.S. will program 10 years of lost opportunity by building the B-1 bomber. Unemployment stateside will be aggravated, and the nation will be too depleted and preoccupied to think of aiding my neighbors here who would be willing to work 25 hours a day if work were available. — Bernard Survil, San Salvador, El Salvador, Central America

Rabin's complaint to U.S.

WASHINGTON — Despite the cordial smiles that abounded during the recent visit of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin to Washington, his secret talks with U.S. leaders were marked by bitter complaints against the CIA.

The fluttering blue and white Israeli flags along downtown streets, the warm greeting by President Ford on a rainy White House lawn and Rabin's address to Congress created an impression that U.S.-Israeli relations were trouble-free.

In private talks, however, Rabin pulled out sheafs of top secret Israeli intelligence reports in an attempt to show the CIA and its recently departed director William Colby tried to undermine Israel.

Colby advised key senators late last year that Israel had a respectable military advantage over its Arab neighbors. Partly as a result, President Ford is asking only $1.8 billion in aid for Israel, at least $500 million less than the Israelis are seeking.

But during his visit, Rabin denounced Colby's estimates as incomplete, citing figures from his own highly respected intelligence services. For instance, he charged, Colby had de-emphasized Jordan's 600 to 700 tanks and another 1,000 tanks in Iraq.

Rabin was particularly furious over the CIA's estimates on Iraq which supplied three large units of troops to the Arabs in the 1973 war. At that time, Rabin acidly pointed out here, the Iraqis were distracted by Kurdish rebels.

Recently, however, to Israel's dismay, the CIA has withdrawn its support of the Kurds, thus freeing four more Iraqi divisions for possible action against Israel.

In addition, Rabin said the United States is unrealistic in thinking that Saudi Arabia, with its sophisticated U.S. arms, is not a potential Israeli opponent.

Meanwhile, the Soviet bloc, according to Rabin's top secret reports, is replenishing its Arab friends with planes, tanks and other war supplies at a rate five times faster than the United States is restocking Israel.

Indeed, observed Rabin during one conference, Israel has had to incorporate Russian equipment captured from the Arabs into its own military forces. The problem is, he noted sardonically, that Israel cannot buy Russian arms and ammunition.

KOREA CAPER: In a wild journalistic career missed by congressional investigators, the CIA once tried to bribe the Communist world's most famous newsmen, Wilfred Burchett, into defecting to the United States for $100,000.

Defection by the talented Australian whose byline is familiar all over the Communist world would have been a juicy intelligence and publicity coup for the United States.

The bizarre idea of buying off Burchett originated with Maj. Gen. Blackshear Bryan, a top U.S. negotiator at Panmunjom, Korea, in September 1953. He discussed it with a U.S. newsman, a U.S. intelligence officer in World War II, who was an acquaintance of Burchett.

The newsman sat down with the CIA and drafted a plan in which the $100,000 would be offered to Burchett as he and the newsman walked down a Panmunjom path. At the end of the path was a U.S. landing pad where a helicopter would be ready to spirit off Burchett.

The newsman, who asked that his name be withheld because he still may visit Communist countries, told us that his purpose in serving as intermediary was to force the CIA to get information for him on two captured friends. The friends, correspondents Don Dixon and Richard Applegate, had been seized in a yacht off Hong Kong by Red China.

Skeptical of the Burchett plan's success, the newsman nevertheless raised it with the Communist reporter before they began their walk. "My news organization can offer you $100,000 for your life story," the newsman said. "Plus we'll take very good care of you." The $100,000 was to be CIA funds.

But Burchett had a wife and newborn child in Peking and also apparently liked his life as a globe-trotting Communist star reporter. He gave the U.S. newsman no encouragement. When the newsman-intermediary advised that the scheme be dropped, the CIA cancelled "Operation Burchett."

Footnote: The newsman told us he had been promised the scoop on the defection as part of the agreement. "Besides," he said, "don't forget, in those days we all felt differently about the CIA."

The weeding out starts

Last month's Iowa political caucuses marked the first step in the long march by the multiple candidates of both parties seeking to become the next occupant of 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.

Among the Republicans, the choice is rather simple: Ronald Reagan or Gerald Ford. Among the Democrats, divided as ever, the choice is more complex and the terrain more rocky.

Iowa's 47 Democratic delegates are chosen in a process which begins during the third week of the New Year. This is a state which rewards the grass-roots politics that George McGovern used so successfully four years ago and may propel winner Jimmy Carter.

In Mississippi, ignored by most Democrats before, 24 delegates were chosen and George Wallace came out on top. Upcoming political attention will focus on Maine, Oklahoma, Alaska, South Carolina, Minnesota and most importantly, for some unknown reason, New Hampshire.

The delegates produced from these states will not choose a President. They will, though, push forward a candidate from the mass that's gathered at the starting line. They will force some to drop out, realizing a year or more of wasted time, energy and money. They will break hearts and bring smiles to others.

Those of us who live in other states are falling victim to a weeding out process over which we have no control. If a candidate began early enough to spend more time in Iowa, let's say, than anyone else, and if he's found some way to appeal to the traditionally conservative voters in South Carolina, the traditionally liberal voters in Minnesota, and appeals to voters in far away Alaska — while not forgetting those in Oklahoma and Maine, then he's got a margin on his fellow candidates.

In the space of two short months, nearly a year before someone gets inaugurated as President in 1977, people in Mississippi, Minnesota and Maine have a chance to look the merchandise over, to make a choice before you and I do. That may make us take the leavings and end with less than they had to choose from.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

Supposedly we are living in a free democracy where an ordinary citizen always has the opportunity to voice his dissatisfaction with the powers that be. Slowly but surely, however, we are finding it more and more difficult to enjoy that inalienable right. Now that the cost of a first class postage stamp has been raised to 13 cents, many of us no longer can afford to write a letter of protest to our congressman.

A President tries too hard

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — President Ford is not in good shape.

When he took over the job at the White House he was at ease, confident, unassuming.

He batted rough questions without losing his cool, as part of normal give and take. He slouched comfortably with friends, political rivals and reporters. His clothes looked as though they came off the shelf, even as yours and mine.

Today, Mr. Ford is a different man. He looks tired and uncomfortable. He no longer slouches but stands precisely erect. His clothes are impeccably tailored. He's starting, in fact, to look like a stereotype of the dozen or so other presidential candidates, announced and unannounced.

His voice, which once gave the impression of friendly reasonableness under fire, now goes strident on hot questions. When he faces rough queries, his voice grows louder and louder, until he is almost shouting. He has the appearance of a man trying too hard.

A few days ago Mr. Ford, unlike his recent predecessors, briefed newsmen on the small details of the 1977 fiscal year federal budget and answered questions for a full hour. It was a mistake.

He talked on minutiae he should have referred to his department secretaries who flanked him on the stage of the State Department auditorium, so eager he was to show one and all his thorough knowledge of each budget item and the reasoning behind it.

This performance was another of Mr. Ford's recent eager attempts to prove he is on top of his job.

The problem was not that his answers were wrong. But they degenerated into overkill defenses. They were political campaign answers — or debaters' answers if you will — rather than simple explanations which would have been more appropriate, and which Mr. Ford himself would have been satisfied with a few months back.

Mr. Ford's briefing of newspapermen on the budget, in sum, was painful to watch. This was all the more strange because his budget is, as budgets go in this city, not bad at all. There are sections which seem abominable to this reporter — but no more than in most such documents. There is a good deal of the normal fuzziness. But there are a good many sections, surprising in this election year, which push programs and expenditure increases for items with payoffs five, eight and 10 years or more in the future in areas not normally calculated to bring political credit — marked increases in basic research, for example. And management reorganizations certain to stir up storms from opponents and too esoteric to win praise from potential backers.

One gets the feeling, and these things are impossible to prove, that Mr. Ford's nervousness is not in the problems of the presidency. It does not lie, for example, in the problem of dealing with an opposition majority in Congress. Or with the growing difficulty of handling the twists and turns of the Soviet Union, the Middle East crisis and Angola. Rather it's his fear of losing in his bid for nomination and election.

It seems clear the strain of the political campaign is starting to get to him before the slugging has hardly begun.

The Reagan candidacy, coming from that very wing of his own party which Mr. Ford had considered his own, has seemingly done something to his confidence difficult to describe.

Mr. Ford has not faced a rough election contest for a very long time, having become so popular with the voters in his Michigan Congressional district that they grew into the habit of reelecting him hands down term after term. And running for Congress is not like running for the White House. Especially when you're there already and there's no place to go politically but down.

S.S. iron curtain hard to penetrate

A kind young lady advised me to write to you in the hope that you would be able to break through the iron curtain at the San Francisco Social Security Regional Office and determine whether my daughter will receive a benefit check this month.

My husband died in 1973 and my daughter and I have been receiving separate benefit checks since that time, until now.

I suppose had I worked out a game-plan on how best to confuse Social Security I would not have done a better job.

My birth date is Nov. 18, 1927. My daughter's is Nov. 12, 1957. The Social Security office has confused us. Thus, I have been terminated because I am not enrolled in school and my daughter has been terminated because I am 18 (at least).

My daughter is a full-time freshman at UCLA. I had delivered her enrollment verification to the Social Security office in Pomona in mid-September.

The local office estimates that a minimum of three to four months will be required before this confusion can be cleared up.

Unfortunately, in the meantime my daughter is receiving no checks and does not have sufficient funds to carry her through the current month.

I live with and care for my parents, who are both 84 years old. My father has until now been the source of my daughter's financial survival.

Yesterday our automobile required emergency repairs and the last straw arrived. Please help. — N. M., Pomona.

With your information and our intervention, your problem was partially resolved in a little over a month. That is not an ideal length of time but it is better than three or four months.

Your daughter got her current check and will get her past one as soon as tracers you filled out are processed. The estimated time for receipt of that check is six weeks.

I am having a problem trying to get some type of action on a very much delayed magazine subscription which I placed with Par Service Co.

It's been over a year since I placed this order for a subscription to "Jet" magazine from a student supposedly trying to win a trip.

Each of the three previous times I wrote to the company, I was sent a card or letter saying my order would be placed again with the publisher.

The Par people also told me I couldn't get a refund because they are only issued three working days after the original order is placed.

How long does it take for a subscription to be filled?

I still haven't received any magazines or other communication from Par.

Maybe you can help me get some other type of reply besides a statement that the publisher will be contacted and that if I don't hear from Par within 30-45 days, to contact Par again.

A copy of your canceled check showed that your problem had been hanging fire since July 1974.

There remained an ember of hope. We fanned it and Par Service Co. immediately wrote to Johnson Publishing Co. referring to past tracers and asking a check of all mailing lists, labels, etc.

Johnson Publishing Co. replied that it's staff could not locate any record of order steps but that your subscription would begin.

Ann Landers

Pregnant, but mess solvable

Dear Ann Landers: Don't tell me I'm in a mess. I know it. What I need is some advice on how to handle the mess so it will be less hurtful and damaging to others.

I became involved with a married man who has a nice wife and three children. He never ran down his wife to me — it's just that their life grew stale and I came along at a time when he needed a lift. Well, the "lift" developed into a fantastic love affair and now I am pregnant. He doesn't know about my condition and I don't think I should tell him.

Another man I've been seeing for over a year (no sex, just a great pal) would love to marry me but I've been stalling because of You Know Who. I feel certain my pal would marry me even though I am pregnant by someone else. I want this child desperately, Ann, not only as a lifelong "souvenir" of the man I love, but also because it might be my last chance to get pregnant. (I'm in my middle 30s.) What should I do! — Anguished

Dear Anguished: If your "pal" will marry you even though you are pregnant with another man's child, you're shot full of luck, Lady. This is not what I'd call your common, everyday-variety fellow.

I see no reason to tell that married man whose wife and kids got "stale" that you are having the child. It's enough that "Pal" knows. In fact, stay a million miles away from the guy. Any ties would complicate your life tremendously — and his, as well.

Dear Ann Landers: In all my 62 years, I never thought I would be writing to you, but I have a very serious problem.

My only son just married a pretty girl named Linda. About a week ago I phoned my new daughter-in-law and invited her to have lunch with me. I wanted to get to know her better. She said she wasn't feeling up to it.

My son called that same night and told me to stop pestering his wife. He said she needs time for herself and can't be bothered with my "nonsense."

That really hurt me, Ann. What should I do about this problem? I'm sure she misunderstood. — New York Pop-In-Law

Dear Pop: I assume you set your son straight. If you didn't, you should have. And now that you know how they feel about your desire to become better acquainted, be careful about doing or saying anything that might be misinterpreted.

Dear Ann Landers: You've printed several letters from young adults complaining about how their parents impose on them, make demands and ruin their lives. Well, here's a switch for you.

Our married children all live nearby. They dump their children on us whenever they feel like it — evenings, weekends, vacations, whatever. They borrow furniture, money and our car. Everything we own they think is theirs.

My husband and I have a chance to buy a nice home 800 miles away where the winter months are like paradise. Would we be running out on our responsibilities if we moved? — Tired Mama And Papa

Dear Tired: No way! You've earned peace and contentment. Call the van and start packing. And send me a postcard from paradise.

The gentle rain from heaven

No, kids, it's not fallout.

For those of you too young to remember, that wet stuff that started falling from the sky Wednesday is called rain. It's just water, really, but the Weather Bureau calls it precipitation, which is much more impressive and ominous. But how ever you splash through it, it's still good old H20, without which Pomona would be in the middle of the Sahara Desert.

Our last "measurable rainfall" in Southern California was Dec. 12, and since then the lawn sprinklers have been whizzing steadily. The Southern California Water Company, made wealthy beyond the dreams of avarice by the long dry spell, promptly asked the California Public Utilities Commission for permission to jack its rates up 17.3 per cent, a tactic similar to the oil companies putting the squeeze on motorists. Personally, I feel that 17.3 per cent is a pretty large leak in the dike — practically a breakthrough.

When the rains came (from the movie of the same name) a lot of people were delighted — farmers, ranchers, cattlemen and forest rangers, who can now catch an extra hour's sleep each morning because the threat of forest fires has diminished. (Prior to the deluge, the bush, brush and underbrush was always described as "tinder-dry" and it "posed a threat." If it blazed, it was always battled by "weary firefighters." Finally it was "contained.")

Rain, particularly the first storm, always catches Southern Californians by surprise. We've forgotten about our ratty windshield wipers, the holes in our soles, the distance from the parking lot to the office. For months we have been sauntering about in sport shirts, and now we scuttle from doorway to doorway in coat, boots and umbrella. Jibes at "sunny California" flood the airwaves as roads are washed out and lightning strikes tall buildings.

When it rains we re-discover those leaks in the ceiling of the guest room, leaks we have been meaning to repair for the past 12 sun-drenched months. The welcome pitter-patter of raindrops on the roof (is that a song?) remind us that all the patio cushions and the kids' bikes are sitting out in the downpour. The long-overdue and "welcome" rain isn't doing any good either to the new paint job on the garage or the furniture in the rumpus room where all of the windows stand open. And there is an inch of water in the cellar.

Well, we need rain, I admit it. I'm glad it came. But it is a mixed blessing, right? Like watching your mother-in-law drive off a cliff in your new car.

Dr. Lamb

Cancer study progressing

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What has happened to the progress in cancer research? So many old people are dying with cancer.

My mother was in her 80s and suffered through two years of cancer. It is so painful for everyone concerned.

Has the money for cancer research been drastically reduced or what?

DEAR READER — Progress in treating cancer is alive and well. The American Cancer Society (ACS) reports that one in three persons is saved from cancer today while 25 years ago only one of four patients was saved. That's progress even if the battle hasn't been completely won. That is a gain in saving 55,000 lives a year. What's more the ACS claims that if all available tools were used properly the savings would actually be 111,000 lives a year.

Things have changed in the cancer picture. In a little more than 20 years the incidence of stomach cancer has decreased 63 per cent and cancer of the uterus 37 per cent. Lung cancer is up 125 per cent. Other cancers on the increase are cancer of the colon, prostate, pancreas and of the bladder in men (but decreased in women).

Note the big winner of the increased sweepstakes is lung cancer. About 90 per cent of lung cancer occurs in cigarette smokers and presumably most of these could be prevented. How? By simply not smoking. There is a 17-fold increased risk of death from lung cancer in the group who smoke just 20 cigarettes a day.

The American Cancer Society gives three reasons for the improved outlook in cancer. Early detection, treatment within four months of diagnosis and the use of new diagnostic and treatment methods.

Dr. Lewis Thomas, President of Memorial Sloan-Kettering, one of the nation's foremost cancer centers predicted recently that the mystery of cancer will be solved in 25 years. He thinks they all represent one disease and one basic mechanism controls all cancer.

He may be right. Certainly cancer is cell growth and replacement, a process necessary to our normal body functions, that has gone wild. When we understand the mechanisms of controlling the regeneration of cells and are able to control these fundamental life processes, we will certainly know enough to control cancer.

I think that is a strong argument for studying aging processes. When we unlock the secrets of basic cell regeneration and how to control this mechanism not only will we be able to do something dramatic about cancer, but we will have made a giant step toward preventing biological aging and many of the medical ills of our time.

For information on where we are on preventing aging send 50 cents for The Health Letter, Number 1-7, Perpetual Youth, Aging. Enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York NY 10019.

There is an enormous amount of cancer research going on. Perhaps not enough, but until the problem is solved any amount won't be enough. I think the real neglected area is the basic research necessary to understand the life processes that would lead to preventing physical aging. We know so much about this already that an effort similar to that to land men on the moon could unlock this riddle in less than 20 years. It would make it possible to literally prevent or reverse aging and the social implications are enormous.

Dummy play is smart one

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Betsey Wolff uses our acronym ARCH in her teaching of play. A is Analyze the lead, R is Review the bidding. C Count your winners and losers. H the all important: How can I make (or if defending, defeat this contract?

The Analysis of the nine of spades lead is top of nothing and probably a doubleton. Review of the bidding indicates that West will hold the club ace since with five spades to the ace-jack and a side ace East would have overcalled one spade.

How can I make the contract leads to the play of the queen of spades from dummy. This unusual second hand high play guarantees declarer's success as long as Analysis of the opening lead has been correct. As you can see if East plays the ace of spades and leads a second spade it will run around to dummy's 10. If East ducks West will get in with the ace of clubs but declarer's king of spades will be a second stopper.

A California reader wants to know if she can open three diamonds with: ♠ 10 4 ♥ 10 9 ♦ A Q J 10 9 4 ♣ Q 7 3.

She is not vulnerable.

The second part of her question is. Does she need a seven-card suit?

Our answer is that a three-diamond opening usually should be based on a seven-card suit, but if she wants to open this hand with three diamonds she should go ahead and do so.

Doctors using obscure terms

If you want to know how long doctors have been double-talking to their patients, consider the advice of a 13th century physician named Arnold of Villanova. He counseled his fellow medicos to use obscure words. "Obstruction of the liver" is a good diagnosis, he averred, because patients couldn't figure out what it meant.

Did I say Sir Charles Sedley of England in 1663 was history's first streaker? Wrong. St. Mark in Verses 51 and 52 of Chapter 15 describes a young man, who, having abandoned his linen cover to run naked, amy merit that distinction, instead.

MOST ADMIRED

Q. "Where does William Shakespeare rank on the list of most-admired persons in the Western World?"

A. He's No. 4, according to a Gallup Poll of 1971. Right behind No. 3, Mahatma Gandhi, and just ahead of No. 5, Socrates. That particular poll placed Abraham Lincoln as No. 1 and Winston Churchill as No. 2.

The word "stepchild" originated long before the words "stepfather" or "stepmother." Our Language man reported that. A client asks for further explanation. The "step" in those words started out as a spin-off from the old English word "steop" meaning "orphaned." And clearly, only the child therefore was referred to originally as "steop." The word had long lost its original significance before any father or mother was so called.

COVER THE ARMS

During the reign of Henry VIII, it was considered indecent not only for a woman but also for a man to wear any sort of costume without sleeves to cover the arms, the record shows.

Were you aware that more people in this country were murdered from 1970 through 1974 than were killed in all of the Vietnam War? Murders have doubled hereabouts in the last 20 years.

Still more turbulence for Concorde despite U.S. okay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite federal approval, the supersonic Concorde jet still must fly through the turbulence of court battles and attacks from Congress and local governments before carrying its first passengers to New York or Washington.

The fast but noisy plane faces a particularly stiff battle in New York, where local and state officials may veto the decision by Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman allowing the Concorde to land at Kennedy International Airport, which is owned by the local Port Authority.

The 1,400-mile-per-hour aircraft appears to have a better chance of eventually flying into Washington's Dulles International Airport, which is owned by the federal government.

In his decision Wednesday on the requests by British Airways and Air France to fly into the two airports, Coleman said they could operate there for a 16-month test period. The Concorde flies the Atlantic in about 3½ hours, compared with seven hours for conventional jets.

The decision goes into effect March 4. Air France said it could begin one flight a day to Washington then, while British Airways said it hoped to begin service in early summer. But the expected litigation delays could push back commercial service until next year.

Coleman's decision was met with an immediate lawsuit and a barrage of criticism from some members of Congress, many of whom said they would seek to overturn the order through legislation because of the Concorde's noise on takeoff and landing and its alleged reduction of the protective layer of ozone around the earth.

The French and British governments expressed satisfaction mixed with cautious views of the battles that lie ahead.

Jean-Claude Martin, coordinator of the Concorde program for Air France, said, "I am confident that Concorde will show itself to be a good neighbor. The battle is not finally won but things are going well."

A British official said the ruling "falls short of all our requirements but ... will permit Concorde to prove its merits and capabilities."

Coleman's order authorizes British Airways and Air France to each conduct a maximum of two daily scheduled flights into Kennedy and one daily flight each into Dulles for a 16-month period.

New exemption beats deduction

By Ray De Crane
(Fifth in a Series)

New on 1975 income tax returns is a new credit for personal exemptions. It amounts to $30 for each exemption listed on your tax return.

Unlike a deduction, which only lowers the total amount of taxable income on which your tax will be computed, a credit is a direct dollar-for-dollar reduction of taxes due.

A family of four — parents and two dependent children — will see their final tax bill lowered by $120 as a result of the new credit.

For purposes of the credit only, the extra exemption for the blind and for those 65 or older is not considered. Such exemptions receive but one credit.

While the new device will lower the final tax bill, it is unlikely it will reduce any amount of tax that otherwise would be due on the return, nor is it apt to add to the refund.

One of the reasons that the withholding tax bite taken out of salary checks and wage earner's pay envelopes was eased last May 1 is that the new $30 personal exemption credit was built into the new withholding tax tables.

Most taxpayers have already received the benefit of the credit in their reduced withholding tax.

The credit is claimed on Line 16b of Form 1040 (Line 13b on Form 1040A) after the normal income tax has been computed in the traditional fashion.

Exhaustion from case load causes judge to retire

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Exhaustion brought on by a five-fold increase in the caseload in two decades was cited as one of the reasons for 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Judge M. Oliver Koelsch taking disability retirement.

Koelsch's decision was announced by Chief Circuit Judge Richard Chambers in a statement Wednesday which said, in part:

"I deplore the conditions which have brought about his retirement. We have to handle about 3,000 cases a year, about five times as many as when I joined the court 22 years ago."

Koelsch, 63, represents Idaho on the appellate court bench, whose jurisdiction also covers eight other Western States.

Chambers urged President Ford to name a quick replacement for Koelsch and four other District Court positions that are also open, two in San Francisco and two in Los Angeles.

Chambers said the simultaneous passage in 1966 of the Criminal Justice Act and the Bail Reform Act "gave us about four times as many criminal appeals, but no new judges."

Chambers termed inadequate a Senate-passed bill now lodged in the House of Representatives that would add one new judgeship in Los Angeles and two each in San Diego and Sacramento.

VIEWS INVITATION — Judge Sam Cianchetti accepts invitation of Pomona Valley-Citrus Legal Secretaries Association for annual Bosses Night celebration from, left, Helen Chapman, Mara Lynn McAlpin and Maxine Frasure. Event is Thursday evening.

Bosses Night set Thursday evening

Pomona Valley-Citrus Legal Secretaries Association will crown a new King Boss at its 25th annual Bosses Night celebration on Thursday at Griswold's.

Master of ceremonies will be Judge Sam Cianchetti.

Music and entertainment will be provided by Rex Schriefer at the organ, Joe Doland and his ukelele, and the Over 44 Quartet, whose members are Ken Tillman, Lloyd Felt, Norris Felt and Joe Frazier.

Members of the Pomona Valley-Citrus Legal Secretaries Association represent law offices and courts throughout the San Gabriel Valley and Pomona Valley, and the new King Boss will be an attorney or judge from these valley's.

The social hour will commence at 7 p.m. and dinner will be served at 8 p.m.

Custom

In 1288 Scotland passed a law that every woman had the prerogative to propose during Leap Year, and if refused, the man had to pay her one pound, unless he was already engaged. These laws also existed throughout Europe and many a single girl took advantage of them to build up her bank account.

Transfer your savings certificate account to Pomona First Federal!

We guarantee no loss of interest, and can also guarantee higher earnings and annual yield!

If you opened a certificate account several years ago that account may be ready to mature. It is probably at a much lower interest rate than savings certificates available today. Unless you take specific action on that account, you stand to lose substantial interest.

At Pomona First Federal, your Financial Friend, you can transfer your account to higher earnings, at no cost or loss of interest to you. In a Pomona First Federal certificate account, your funds can earn up to 7¾% per annum—an annual yield of 8.06%!*

Remember, if savings certificates are left to renew (which they do automatically ten days after they mature), you'll be losing important interest—the difference between the interest rates of the past and the higher rates of today.

Bring your certificate in to Pomona First Federal today. We'll be glad to transfer the account, no matter when your certificate matures, 30, 60, even 90 days from now. That's the spirit of Financial Friendship at PFF! Guaranteed Interest!

GUARANTEED INTEREST!

Some happy endings, others not so happy

(Editor's Note: An increasing number of Americans are making major life-style changes which often bring emotional turmoil to their families. Here is the last of four portraits of people who changed their way of living.)

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer

"I wanted to walk out the door and march to the horizon and never stop.

"My kids were unhappy, my husband was unhappy and I was miserable. Who benefited? Why stay?"

Karen didn't stay. Two years ago she left her marriage of 26 years and her seven children. There had been boredom, drudgery, baby after baby. There was an alcoholic husband, a nervous breakdown, little money. There was no time for literature and the things she loved.

"I felt as though I was dying," recalls Karen, now 46 and a Richmond, Va., resident.

She moved in with a lover, went to graduate school, became a feminist — and deeply missed her 13-year-old son, Bobby.

After six uneasy months she moved back home, she and her college professor husband leading separate lives, sleeping in separate bedrooms. He called her "the star boarder," "the golden girl."

Life didn't get better.

She moved out again — this time for good — in May of 1974. Today she is an administrator with a small company, making $250 a week, sharing an apartment with another woman.

Karen, not her real name, is active in the National Organization for Women and organizes conferences for older women.

"We have to realize that we did what we did, did the best we could. Now we look ahead," she says.

"Leaving was the right thing to do. I should have left sooner," Karen says. "But I wrote half the script. Recrimination and resentment are acids that burn you up inside and don't do anyone any good."

Karen looks back on her marriage as being "one baby after another. I was scrubbing floors and running the house. I was barefoot and pregnant. There wasn't enough money.

"I put my husband through graduate school. I had been educated to higher expectations. Then he, an English professor, was doing what I wanted to do.

"I was in the harness and my mind was stagnant," recalls Karen, a strong, energetic, animated woman. She was a brilliant and precocious student, the first woman in her family to attend college. She earned a master's degree in English literature.

"I felt guilty because I wasn't happy in my marriage," she says. "I had beautiful children, a handsome professional husband and a house in the suburbs. I felt it was my fault.

"I would get depressed. My husband found me unsexy and uncommunicative. I wasn't easy to live with."

Karen first decided to leave her suburban marriage after she and her teen-age children took part in a psychodrama that left her "wrecked and bleeding inside."

They accused her of not being loving toward her husband, a brilliant, sometimes charming, sometimes helpless man. He himself once walked out briefly, saying he needed peace to write his dissertation. By the time Karen was 35, he was having a love affair with a 20-year-old woman.

Once she packed his bags and school books and papers and asked him to leave. He returned in the snow at Christmas time, tears in his eyes. She took him back.

In the psychodrama, Karen literally shrank into a fetal position.

"I felt such pain, and yet it was therapeutic," she says. "It made me ask basic questions about my life:

"Why all this sacrifice? What about the things I wanted: the literature, the art, the music, the travel?

She sat down and listed all the worst and best things that could happen if she left, "and the good outweighed the bad."

Karen had been working in a computer firm, rising rapidly in a new field to earn $15,000 a year to put a daughter in a hospital and private school.

"I ran the house, I worked, I went to graduate school. My husband and I were strangers."

She walked into the kitchen one night as he was preparing a gourmet dinner.

"Why do you look so grim?" he asked.

"I have something important to say," Karen said.

"I want to leave."

"Is that a threat?"

"I mean it. I feel I am going under and I need a period of regeneration. I must get out."

She recalled that "he was rather pleased. He had his routine and a 10-year-old son and 15-year-old daughter at home to keep house. The older children were away.

"The only one who wasn't pleased was my little one," said Karen, a catch in her throat. "We were such pals."

"No, Mommy, I don't want you to go," Bobby cried.

"Sweetheart, I won't go far," she told him. "I'll call you every Wednesday night at 7 o'clock. I'll put in a special telephone and give the number only to you. On weekends we'll go horseback riding."

She said: "He had friends and a school, and I couldn't uproot him, for his own sake. I hoped he and his father would become closer. It's painful to me, but they have and my husband has bent over backwards with him."

Finally, she said: "I was the odd man out." Her love affair came apart.

Karen moved back home, holding a job, helping with the housework, but refusing to assume the household. "We slept in separate bedrooms," she said.

"I came to realize that I had married a man who was not the marrying kind.

"I had one foot in and one foot out the door. I asked if we could work something out."

They did.

Now Karen lives apart, missing her son, hoping, finding her own way.

Crab's claw

The pincer claw of an adult king crab can easily crunch through a broom handle. A really large adult, with walking legs two feet long, has a span of about five feet and can weigh 25 pounds.

UCLA is back in familiar spot

SEATTLE (AP) — In a combination basketball-staring contest, the University of Washington Huskies blinked in the first half and the UCLA Bruins took over first place in the Pacific-8 Conference.

Trailing 24-20 midway through the first half, ninth ranked UCLA gained the initiative when Coach Gen Bartow switched his Bruins to a zone defense.

The perennial Pac-8 powerhouse then rattled off 10 straight points, six of them by guard Jim Spillane, and went on to a 92-87 upset victory Thursday over sixth ranked Washington.

Spillane injured his left ankle with eight minutes left in the game, but Bartow said he expected the junior to play Saturday in Pullman when the Bruins face the Washington State Cougars. The Huskies will host Southern California.

Marques Johnson, with 25 points, and Richard Washington with 17 points and 14 rebounds, keyed the Bruins' fifth conference triumph in six games. Overall UCLA is 16-3. Washington is 17-2 for the season and 4-2 in league play.

Besides cooling off the Huskies, who were shooting 70 per cent from the field before the defensive switch, Bartow said the zone "kept us out of foul trouble and let us have the boards a little more efficiently."

Washington Coach Marv Harshman discounted the zone's effect, noting the Huskies still sank five more field goals.

UCLA, which ranked last in conference foul shooting entering the game hit 26 of 32, including 12 in a row in the closing minutes to stifle Washington's comeback efforts.

The victory Thursday night in Seattle gave the Bruins a 5-1 record, with Washington and Oregon State University, both 4-2, tied in second place.

Five-foot-nine freshman guard Gene Ransom sank a 25-foot basket with seconds to play to give California an 73-72 upset win over Oregon State and knock the Beavers out of tie for first place.

Ransom finshed with 25 points and Carl Bird added 23 for the Golden Bears, 3-3, while Oregon State got 22 points from Don Smith and 21 from Lonnie Shelton.

A 14-1 outburst during a five-minute, first-half spell enabled Oregon to coast to a 72-60 victory over visiting Stanford.

Ed Schweitzer of Stanford led all scorers with 21 points, while teammate Wolfe Perry contributed 10. Ronnie Lee scored 17 points and had 10 assists and Greg Ballard scored 15 points for Oregon.

Southern California blew a 13-point half-time lead and suffered its sixth straight conference defeat, losing 80-72 to hosts Washington State.

It was the seventh consecutive loss for USC in overall play and it dropped the Trojans to an 11-8 record.

Cougar guard Edgar Jeffries sparked a second-half rally which enabled Washington State to overcome USC's 37-24 half-time lead. Then, after the Trojans' Marv Safford and Steve Malovic fouled out, the Cougars pulled away.

Pro sports face uncertain future

The Bicentennial year, ironically, seems destined to go down as the worst year ever for professional sports.

Ownership of pro franchises have been taking a beating in the courts. So far the score stands Athletes 3, Owners 0.

The Rozelle rule went down for the count first putting pro football owners in a tizzy. In what appears to be almost complete capitulation NBA owners gave in to player demands in an out of court settlement on the Oscar Robertson suit.

The arbitration decision making Andy Messersmith a free agent was upheld. So baseball seems to be at the players association's mercy in bargaining for a new contract between players and owners.

On the other hand, if baseball owners give in, who knows what the future will bring?

A lot of people side in with the players saying, "let them get all they can. It won't hurt the game."

But this writer has strong doubts.

If players are free to move to other teams every year how much interest can the fans maintain? Conceivably a team could lose its most popular or most valuable player every year if the player's salary demands aren't met or if he isn't guaranteed so much playing time or a starting position. Or maybe a left-handed batter wants to have it in writing he wouldn't have to face any left-handed pitchers?

Impossible you say? Maybe it is right now. But if players are free to move anytime they want, obviously all of their whims will have to be acceeded to.

Player package plan

Also, what is to prevent groups of players offering themselves as a package?

Remember the joint holdout of Don Drysdale and Sandy Koufax? What if the Rams' defensive line or wide receivers, or running back corps decided to go to the highest bidder in a package deal?

A team's quarterback and wide receivers or running backs and offensive line could do likewise. Or, in baseball, an entire starting staff or great pitching-catching combination or double play combo or, from a slugging team, the number three, four and five hitters might offer themselves.

In basketball it could be the center or forwards or all three or both starting guards.

The possibilities are endless and, at the same time, stunning in their implications.

This writer is one who has felt all along there has to be some type of restraint such as the Rozelle rule in football or baseball's reserve clause to prevent constant and mass movement of players from club to club.

The salaries, already out of sight, can only skyrocket. And once again, it is the fan who is hurt. Ticket prices continue to go up in every sport.

How much more can Joe fan take? Unless the course is altered quickly, the handwriting for all major professional sports may be on the wall right now.

DISA AND DATA: All is quiet now on the Lakers rumor front. But unless the club comes back strong, the feeling here is Bill Sharman, one of sports' class guys, will be axed.

Lakers must win

The fact that Sharman doesn't have the greatest personnel (aside from Kareem Abdul Jabbar) won't make a bit of difference. Jack Kent Cooke won't accept another loser. Forum attendance remains way down this year and only winning will bring the fans back and Cooke is far from a patient man.

Chick Hearn has (of this writing) cut way back on his on-the-air sniping. But that is simply because Sharman did something about it.

Sharman apparently was completely unaware of Hearn's strong public criticism, until January 4. There was a rumor, denied by Sharman, that his attorney (Ed Hookstratton) then lodged a complain with Cooke.

Sharman admits only that he talked with Chick. Whatever, the outspoken criticism stopped.

But the club again this year has made numerous changes during the season. This despite Sharman's constant public declaration that it takes a couple of YEARS of playing together before a group becomes a team.

More changes are upcoming. With the settlement of the Oscar Robertson suit and agreement to retain the compensation clause four years, the Lakers will have to give something to Golden State for Cazzie Russell. A ruling from the league office is expected shortly.

Ironically, with Sharman's avowed aim of playing the best defensive combinations, Russell's value to and future with the Lakers appears to be nearly nil.

Ontario eager to host Bonita

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

The Bonita High Bearcats, after failing to knock off Hacienda League front-runner Alta Loma Wednesday afternoon, find themselves defending their runnerup spot tonight at Ontario.

The 'Cats, 7-2 in the league, hold a one-game lead over the third-place Jaguars going into the game, and will have to win to avoid a tie with the surprising Jaguars.

When last the two squads met at Bonita, the Bearcats disposed of the Jags, 76-62. But neither coach involved feels that Bonita will have it that easy this time around.

"It'll be quite a bit tougher over there," said Remi Trembly, coach of the Bearcats. "I don't think we're really 14 points better than they are."

Larson feels the same way, and apparently has some changes in mind this time around.

"Last time we tried to double team (Steve) Sly," said Larson. Sly, a 6-foot-4 senior center who has averaged over 22 points and 14 rebounds in nine Hacienda League contests thus far, is the key to Bonita's offense.

"But we found that you can't stop Sly from getting his points," continued Larson. "And (Aaron) Bitran, (Mike) Sears and (Dave) Drury all scored about six points over their averages."

The Jags held Sly to 18 but Bitran (who averages about 14 points per game) scored 22, Drury (8 average) got 14 and Sears (5) average added 10.

"This time we'll probably sag on Sly a little bit, but we aren't really going to doubleteam him," concluded the Jaguar coach.

Larson, in only his second year as Ontario's head coach, seems to have turned around the Jaguars' basketball fortunes. (They were 3-11 in league games last year, 4-10 the year before.)

He starts a very young five, which includes a nucleus of a senior (center Ricky Wood) and three juniors (forwards Leo Olivas and Mickey Donaldson and guard Otis Manning). His fifth starter is either a senior (Fred Vigil), junior (Bob Starman) or sophomore (Ron Penigar).

Wood, Donaldson and Vigil are the only returning lettermen from last year's squad, and Wood is the only one who started.

"We're short and not very physical, but we're pretty quick," said Larson. "Last time (against Bonita) we got beat up a lot on the boards, but in the second half we played their physical game and outscored them by one (34-33).

"I'd like to knock off one of the top two (Alta Loma and Bonita)," he said. "I think its important to try to get some playoff experience this year."

Tonight's game will feature four of the top seven scorers in the Hacienda League in Sly (22.3 average), Donaldson (17.4), Manning (14.8) and Bitran (14.2).

Other games tonight will include Chino at Garey, Ganesha at Pomona, Damien at Montclair and Upland at Claremont in the San Antonio League; Walnut at Alta Loma and San Dimas at Royal Oak in the Hacienda League; and Chaffey at San Gorgonio, Ontario Christian at Brethren, American Christian at Victory Valley Christian and Orange Lutheran at La Verne Lutheran. All games begin at 8.

Gold medal for Young

INNSBRUCK (AP) — Speed skater Sheila Young, the powerful 25-year-old who earned a silver medal Thursday, gave the United States its first gold of the 12th Olympic Games today, flashing through the 500 meters in Olympic record time.

Miss Young sprinted around the fog-shrouded track in 42.76 seconds to smash the record of 43.33 seconds set four years ago at Sapporo by American Anne Henning. Miss Young set the world record for the distance of 40.91 at Davos, Switzerland last week.

"It was weird. When I found out I had won the gold medal a rush went through my whole body," she said. "It wasn't a perfect race. On the last hundred meters, I started coming back on my heels. I didn't think I made the last turn too good."

Miss Young's performance was the lone bright spot for the U.S. squad in today's action. The Soviet Union picked up a gold medal, its third of the Games, in the 20-kilometer individual biathlon and the East Germans held the lead after three of the four runs in single seat luge competition.

The young United States hockey team was scheduled to face its first, and stiffest, test of the Games later today when it squared off against the powerful Russian squad, favored to win the gold medal, in the opening game for both teams.

Russia continued to lead the unofficial medal standings with three golds and a total of seven. The U.S. was second with one gold and two silver and Austria was third with its one gold.

Miss Young, a versatile performer who took up cycling three years ago and won the World Sprint Cycling Championship in 1973, picked up her first medal Thursday by finishing second in the 1,500-meter speed skating event. She has a strong chance for a third medal Saturday when she competes in the 1,000-meter event.

Canada's Cathy Priester won the silver medal today in 43.12 seconds and Tatiana Averina of the Soviet Union took the bronze in 43.17, just four-hundreths of a second faster than 24-year-old Leah Poulos of Northbrook, Ill., who had to settle for fourth.

Lori Monk, 19, of Madison, Wis., the only other American entered, wound up ninth in 44:00.

Miss Young, who annoanced her engagement to James Ochowicz, a cyclist from Milwaukee, earlier in the week, appeared at the interview room with a large bouquet of yellow tulips.

"I don't know where they came from—someone just thrust them into my hands," she said. She said she skates without socks because "I feel more comfortable. I like my toes to move around. I have more rapport with my skates."

Miss Young was on the U.S. team four years ago at Sapporo and just missed a medal, finishing a close fourth in the 500 meters. She has said this will be her last Olympics.

Despite Miss Young's victory, there was a cloud surrounding the U.S. speed skating team. Coach Dianne Holum accused Phil Krumm, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, of tampering with the selection of skaters. "They told us not to discuss the Olympic selection policies but we simply don't have all our best skaters entered," said Miss Holum, a gold medal winner at 1,500 meters four years ago at Sapporo.

She charged that Krumm forced speed skating officials to reverse themselves on a plan to hold skate-offs to select the third starter for the 1,000 and 3,000-meter women's races and the 1,500-meter men's race. Miss Holum said Krumm's action kept skaters out of those races that should have been in them.

Krumm was not available for comment on the charge that Peggy Crowe was picked for Saturday's 1,000 meters over Kim Kostrun. Squabbles on the men's team center on the selection of Charles Gilmore over Eric Heiden in the 1,500 meters.

Meanwhile, Nikolay Kruglov of the Soviet Union picked up his country's third gold medal in the 20-kilometer (12.4 miles) individual biathlon—a curious event that combines cross country skiing and markmanship with a rifle. Kruglov finished in one hour, 14 minutes, 12.26 seconds.

K.C. Kings' comeback stuns Lakers

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "There's no doubt about it," yelled a happy Kansas City Kings fan, slapping a companion on the back, "that was their best game of the year and they're back, baby, they're back."

It remains to be seen whether the Kings, who suffered through an 11-game losing streak earlier this year, are back. But there can be no doubt that Thursday night's come-from-behind, 117-109 victory over Los Angeles was one of their best performances of the season.

With Gail Goodrich hitting 21 points, the Lakers moved out front in the first half, 69-58. At 6:12 of the third period Los Angeles was cruising along with a 17-point lead, 82-65.

Then while the 6,048 fans watched with increasing excitement, almost unbelieving, the Kings went on a 14-2 spurt, led by Ollie Johnson, Scott Wedman and Nate Archibald, that brought Kansas City to within 86-83 at the end of the third quarter.

The Kings' surge was unabated in the fourth period as Archibald, Sam Lacey and Glenn Hansen led an inspired attack that resulted in Kansas City sitting atop a nine-point advantage, 101-92, with 7 minutes to play.

Archibald, who led the Kings with 29 points, held Goodrich to just eight in the final two periods.

"Tiny did a great job on Goodrich in the second half," said Kings Coach Phil Johnson, who was slapped with a technical foul for walking onto the court during a third period argument with referee Dick Bavetta. "He just didn't let him have the ball."

"That was part of the problem," said Los Angeles Coach Bill Sharman. "We couldn't seem to hit our key shots. They got hot and we got cold and that was the difference."

The Lakers, who got 31 points from Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, are now 25-26 while Kansas City, winners in five of their last six games, went to 19-31.

Heair wins on decision

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lightweight contender Jimmy Heair won a unanimous 10-round decision over Javier Muniz Thursday night at the Olympic Auditorium, apparently earning Heair a title bout against World Boxing Council champion Guts Ishimatsu.

Cal State L.A. here tonight

APC shocks Cal Poly

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

Cal Poly is building its momentum for tonight's big basketball game against Cal State Los Angeles — the wrong way.

The Broncos suffered their second shocking upset loss of the week Thursday night when underdog Azusa Pacific battled its way to a stunning 67-65 victory at Kellogg Gym.

All of a sudden, Poly has lost two against teams with inferior records after winning eight in a row.

Whatever the reason for the sudden downfall, Coach Don Hogan is hoping the spark and enthusiasm which put Poly into first place in the California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) standings returns tonight when CSLA visits Kellogg Gym for an 8 p.m. tipoff.

Fortunately for Poly, the two losses this week to San Francisco State and Azusa Pacific were to non-conference opponents.

So Poly still enjoys its 4-0 record in CCAA play a game ahead of Cal State Los Angeles' 3-1 mark. A win tonight could provide the Broncs a two-game cushion at the halfway point while the Diablos are eager to share the lead.

Azusa, now 8-14 for the season, Made Poly play its game Thursday night and controlled the tempo throughout.

The game wasn't as close as the final score indicates as APC was in solid control of the situation.

Azusa celebrated the hard-earned victory as if it won the national championship.

"We're very happy," Coach Cliff Hamlow said. "We had some young people prove what they can do tonight. We came in here with a game plan and it was gratifying to be able to execute it so well."

After Azusa got the opening tipoff, the Cougars went into a stall to force Poly out of its normal zone defense. When the Broncs went to a man-to-man, APC went to work.

Azusa shot 60 per cent thanks to many layups caused by its crisp passes which always seemed to find someone open under the basket.

"Our hero tonight was guard Brian Cox," Hamlow said. "He set the tempo for us tonight and hit the open man with his passes."

Cox didn't score a point but he was credited with eight assists in an outstanding performance.

Keith Walker came off the bench to lead the Cougars with 26 points and 11 rebounds. He scored 19 in the second half including a pair of free throws with two seconds on the clock to ice the victory with a four-point lead.

Rebounding was probably the key item in the upset. The smaller Cougars grabbed 33 rebounds to Poly's 17 and enjoyed an incredible 15-2 advantage in the first half. Poly's Paul Newton, averaging 10.2 rebounds a game, grabbed only two.

Poly shot 58 per cent from the floor and had four more field goals. Azusa was hot on the free throw line in making 15 of 20.

As usual, senior guard Joe Sills led the Broncs with 24 points in making 12 of 21 shots. Jack Gamulin added 15 on seven of nine attempts.

Hamlow isn't going to say the win can turnaround Azusa's season but the coach is excited about the future since he started three freshmen.

"We were very patient tonight and it paid off," the veteran APC coach said.

As far as Poly is concerned, Hogan said, "Azusa took the tempo of the game away from us and deserve a lot of credit.

We just have to bear down and bounce back against Cal State L.A."

Buddy Allin's play upstages oldsters

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — "Up until now," Billy Casper said, "it looked like a pretty good day for the old guys."

Casper made the observation when Buddy Allin came ambling in with a 68 and the second round lead in the $180,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic with a seven-under-par 135 total.

That took an edge—just a tiny edge—off the excitement created by the record runs of Casper, 44, and Arnold Palmer, 46, winners of a combined 112 tour titles.

Palmer, who scored his last American victory in this tournament three long years ago, one-putted 10 times on his way to an eight-under-par 64, his best round in years.

And Casper played his back nine in 29 strokes, the best on the tour this season, on the way to a 65.

"It's kind of interesting," said Casper. "I don't ever remember shooting a 29 before. And I had to wait until my 21st year to do it."

"I felt like I was going to make it every time I got the putter in my hand," said the obviously-delighted Palmer, who used only 26 strokes on the greens. "I can't remember the last time I had a putting round like that. I really don't know when it was."

Casper's seven-under-par effort left him in second place, two shots back of the pace-setting Allin, with three rounds to go in this unique five-day, four-course, 90-hole tournament that Palmer has won five times.

And Arnold's 64—like Casper, shot at Eldorado—put him in a tie for third at 138, three strokes back.

He shared the position with Dwight Nevil and Bob Murphy. Nevil, once a Dallas fireman, had a 67 in the cloudy, chilly, occasionally drizzly weather. Murphy had a 68.

Jack Nicklaus and big George Cadle were at 139. Nicklaus shot a 70 and Cadle had a 65. Defending champion Johnny Miller had a 69 and was tied at 140 with Jim Colbert and three others. Colbert, who shared the first round lead with Allin, slipped back with a 73.

Allin, Nevil and Murphy played at Bermuda Dunes. The rest of the leaders were at Eldorado.

The format for this marathon tournament calls for the 128 pros to play one round each on Bermuda Dunes, Eldorado, La Quinta and Indian Wells — each day with a different three-man team of amateurs — before the final round Sunday at Indian Wells.

Lee Trevino, Tom Watson, Hale Irwin and Ben Crenshaw, winner of the last two tour titles, are not competing.

"The major thing, as far as I'm concerned, is that I've been trying to get my whole game together," Palmer said. "I think I'm getting there. I'm getting closer. I drove the ball extremely well. I putted extremely well.

"Over the last few years, it's been my iron play that's bothered me. Well, I got my irons on the green and I got 'em close enough to the hole to make some putts. Even if I had had, say, 30 putts, I'd still have had a decent score. And that's the difference."

Of his 10 one-putts, three were outside of 20 feet and five more were in the 15-18 foot range.

"After that front nine (he played it in par) I thought it was going to be another of those rounds where I hit 16 or 17 greens and shot 72 or 73," Casper said.

But he holed a 140 yard shot from the fairway for an eagle two on the 10th and birdied the next three holes, one on a 45-50 foot putt. He had a couple of pars, then followed with consecutive birdie putts of 18 and 25 feet. And, on his final hole, he missed an eight-foot putt for a 28.

The low-key Allin, a four-time winner in five full years on the tour, has scored 13 birdies in two days but isn't really looking for a title.

"I won't start thinking about that for a couple of days yet," the skinny little guy said. "There's too much golf yet to be played. I'm a slow starter. My game really isn't where I want it yet. My swing isn't all it should be. I'm having to coach myself—'put your feet so, get your weight here, get your hands there, now, let it go'—on every swing. It's not natural.

Indoor Games

Preps may steal show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With such top track names as Dan Ripley, Rod Dixon, Dwight Stones, Ralph Mann, Jim Bolding and Don Quarrie, the Los Angeles Times Indoor Games track meet this evening figures to be a crowd-pleaser.

But the high school two-mile run may steal the show.

While the nation focuses on the 1976 Olympic Games, Eric Hulst, Thom Hunt, Don Moses and Sal Peralta will be shooting for the 1980 Games, and beyond, when they take the track in the 22-lap prep feature.

Before that race, however, Stones hooks up with Tom Woods and Rory Kotinek in a heated high jump rivalry, Ripley shoots for a world pole vault mark and Dixon steps down to the mile for one last fling.

The meet starts with the 60-yard high hurdles, in which France's Guy Drut is expected to beat Tommie Lee White and Kenya's Kip Ngeno.

Then Quarrie will run against a mediocre field in the 60-yard dash and Jarvis Scott collides with Wendy Koenig Knudson in the women's 500.

In this Olympic year, many of the top track stars are staying at home to protect themselves against pratf

Taylor resigns at OSU

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Fred Taylor abruptly announced his resignation as Ohio State basketball coach Thursday, evidently the climax of a long-running rift with Ed Weaver, the Big Ten Conference school's athletic director.

Neither of the principals would comment publicly on their feud. But both will admit privately it hastened the 52-year-old Taylor's departure as the dean of Big Ten coaches.

"It's been blown out of prospective. I don't know if it exists like some people think it does," Weaver said of his difficulties with the school's basketball coach of 18 years. "I don't think Fred has been a happy man here for the last five years."

"My resignation was for personal reasons. It has nothing to do with the way we're playing or our won-lost record," said Taylor, who has rolled out a 297-149 record, one national champion and two runnersup.

The resignation is effective at the end of the season.

The coach told his squad after practice Thursday. "I wanted them to know before anyone else. I just hope they play well the rest of the way," he said.

Athletic department officials also blame Taylor's recruiting failures, a 28-40 record in the last three seasons and dwindling home attendance for his departure. Taylor lost such prizes as Scott May to Indiana, Phil Hubbard to Michigan and Mike Phillips to Kentucky.

Knox ends rumors by signing contract

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rams owner Carroll Rosenbloom says the new pact Coach Chuck Knox has signed with the organization is "tantamount to a 10-year contract."

Knox ended rumors that he might leave Los Angeles by signing a 5-year contract worth a reported $90,000 a year with the Rams Thursday.

The five-year contract has a five-year option, and a bonus structure could up the total to more than $100,000 per year.

Rosenbloom said, "Chuck knows that we hope he remains head coach as long as he wishes.

"Looking to the distant future, we want him to remain a key part of our organization even after he no longer wants to coach."

The Rams have reached the National Football League playoffs each year since Knox took over three years ago. The past two seasons, they have lost in the NFC championship playoffs.

"We feel we have established a solid foundation upon which we can continue a winning program," said Knox, who was an assistant coach with the New York Jets and the Detroit Lions before coming to Los Angeles.

"Credit should go to the players and the entire Ram organization for the success of the past three years," he added. "I have also appreciated the wonderful support of the Rams fans."

Before he signed the new contract, Knox had been rumored under consideration as head coach with the Jets and the Philadelphia Eagles. He denied the rumors, however.

Knox' Ram teams have compiled a 34-8 record, and the 43-year-old mentor was named NFL Coach of the Year in 1973 after his team was 12-2 in his first season.

Los Angeles had 10-4 and 12-2 records for the past two seasons.

'Hens, Stags lose 'toughies'

Pomona-Pitzer and Claremont-Mudd came close but both dropped road games.

The Sagehens saw a great rally near the finish fall short in dropping a 75-72 game at Cal Lutheran. The Stags watched L.A. Baptist get red hot in the second half and pull off an 80-76 come-from-behind win.

At Thousand Oaks, Pomona-Pitzer (5-12), playing without center Ed McFadden (flu) and guard Steve Pinkston (leaving for Africa), played the Kingsmen (12-10) to a standstill, 35-35, in the first half.

Cal Lutheran took over in the second half and pulled away to lead by 13 with 2:15 left in the game.

But the 'Hens' press forced the Kingsmen into turnovers and cut the margin to just 2 points 72-70. A Cal Lutheran free throw made it 73-70.

Brandon Boyd missed a shot for P-P, but Tom Fink rebounded and was fouled. Fink sank one of two free throws and it was 73-71 with 25 seconds left.

The Sagehens stole the ball. Boyd drove and missed again and Fink rebounded again, shot and also missed but was fouled again. He made the first free throw but missed the second which would have tied the score. Fink led the 'Hens in rebounds with 13 rebounds.

CLC scored with two seconds left for the final 75-72 count.

Bob Hoehn, playing center in place of McFadden, led all scorers with 25 points. The Sagehens, 2-4 in conference play, are at Whittier, 5-2, Saturday night.

At Thousand Oaks, Claremont-Mudd (3-16) held a 42-29 lead at the half. But L.A Baptist hit on 20 of 29 field goal attempts in the second half to outscore the Stags, 51-34, and pull out the win.

The Stags shot well, but not well enough. They hit on 14 of 29 in the second half and 30 of 63 overall. The Lancers made 32 of 63 shots overall and the two field goals made the difference.

Stu DuVall scored 14 points and 15 rebounds for C-M. Anthony Autrey scored 22 points and had 13 boards for L.A.

Dan Butterfield came off the bench to lead the Stags with 17 points. He had four rebounds. Eric Weber hit on 5 of nine shots, scored 11 points and grabbed eight rebounds. Both are freshmen.

The Stags were without Rex Halvorson. Halvorson, suffering from high blood pressure, will also miss Saturday night's game at Whittier. C-M is 1-5. The Poets are 5-2 in conference play.

PIT IS DUG BIGGER

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The University of New Mexico's basketball arena, known as The Pit, has been expanded to 17,121 seating capacity. The 2,000 additional seats are in a cantilevered deck above existing facilities. The total project cost was $1.8 million.

'Pack matmen now 4-0

Claremont High rolled to its fourth straight San Antonio League wrestling victory Thursday night at Ganesha, stopping the host Giants 48-26.

It was also the 'Pack's 11th straight dual meet win this season without a loss.

A pin by Duane Dimos in the 157-pound match and three Ganesha forfeits in the heavier weights salted the win away for Claremont. Heaveyweight Jeff Whitton remained unbeaten (22-0) on the year by receiving a Ganesha forfeit, while 168-pounder Randy Coste advanced his season slate to 23-1 with a forfeit victory.

Garey kept pace with the Wolfpack matmen by besting Montclair, 33-27. Key Viking pins by Humberto De Los Rios, Don Vicario and Ismael Templos made the difference, as Garey bested the Cavs despite forfeiting the 178 and heaveyweight classes.

Upland also stayed in the running for the SAL wrestling crown with a 39-20 win over Chino. The Highlanders captured the final six matches on the card to erase an early Cowboy lead and score the win.

Claremont (4-0) and Garey (3-1) will clash next Wednesday at Claremont High in a key SAL matchup as the dual meet season draws to a close. Also on tap for Wednesday are Chino (0-4) vs. Ganesha (0-4) and Upland (3-1) vs. Montclair (2-2). All SAL matches start at 5:30 p.m.

The SAL league finals are slated for Saturday, Feb. 14 at the Wolfpack gym.

Aztecs sign top gridder

SAN DIEGO (AP) — David Turner, the top running back in California junior college history, is a student now at San Diego State after snubbing many of the nation's biggest football schools while running wild at Bakersfield College.

The 6-foot, 210-pound tailback was voted the 1975 California junior college player of the year. After UCLA won in the Rose Bowl last month, Coach Dick Vermeil said getting Turner was his next goal.

Turner, announcing his choice of a senior college Monday, said he made up his mind when he was a high school junior and San Diego State Coach Claude Gilbert spoke at the awards dinner.

Turner gained 1,796 yards on 293 carries in 10 games for Bakersfield College.

JC baseball season opens on Saturday

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

As happens every spring, the junior colleges have the honor of opening the local baseball season.

Both Mt. San Antonio and Chaffey colleges will jump into diamond action Saturday, with the Citrus baseballers beginning play the following Tuesday.

MSAC will open by hosting Rio Hondo Saturday afternoon in a 2 p.m. start, while Chaffey will be at Antelope Valley in a contest slated to begin at 1 p.m.

Citrus, which finished second in the state in 1975 to Cerritos, will make its debut by entertaining Compton College Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 p.m.

All three local JCs had outstanding seasons last spring, but a duplication of that effort in 1976 by any or all of the three will depend heavily on the contributions of freshman and players up from junior varsity squads.

"We have six veteran starters returning this year," notes Owl coach Skip Claprood, "but we will have to build an all-new pitching staff with only one sophomore pitcher back."

Sophomore Wayne Eggleston, who saw limited duty last year as the Owls won the Mission Conference crown with a 17-5 league and 34-10 overall mark, is the only returning hurler.

Departed Owl pitchers are Jim Arkison (6-1 last year) and Ron Walton (12-3), now playing for UC Berkeley, John Field (11-3), now at Santa Clara, and Eric Mustad (5-2), now at CS Fullerton.

Likely candidates for the Owl starting rotation this season include Roy Naas from Gladstone High, Mike Yackee from Arroyo High and Gene Marzo from Arcadia High. Yackee was a choice of the Detroit Tigers in this winter's pro draft.

Also contending for a berth on the Citrus staff is former Claremont High ace John Huddleston.

Returning starters for Claprood's squad are catcher Worth Valentine, first baseman Dave Hostetler (drafted by the Giants this winter), shortstop Todd Ervin (another Claremont High product), third baseman Joe Sansorn and outfielders Kim Eppard and Jim McCadden. Absent from the returning starters is JC All-American centerfielder Greg Johnston, who signed with the Giants.

MSAC is in a similar situation as Citrus, as the Mounties have lost standout hurlers Bob Chaulk (now playing for the U. of Arizona), Jim Vallone (now on the La Verne College squad), Terry Jacob (now at Arizona State) and Larry Pecarcik (now a Cincinnatti Reds farmhand).

However, Mountie mentor Art Mazmanian feels this year's MSAC varsity will have good defense, good speed, and a top-notch pitcher in Walnut High product Bob Veselic.

Veselic, who red-shirted last year when the Mounties compiled a 28-9 season record and claimed a South Coast Conference co-championship with Cerritos, was a first-round choice of the Twins in the recent pro draft.

Other top-notch returnees include centerfielder Ron Roenicke (who hit .315 last year), catcher Tracy Cowger (a Ganesha High product who hit .365 last season) and first baseman Danny Gans. Up from the Mountie J.V. squad are designated hitter Lew Johnson and pitcher John Vander-Wende.

New faces for MSAC include a keystone combination of shortstop Larry Marsh and second baseman Matt Erickson (a transfer from Cal State Fullerton).

Mazmanian feels that, once again this spring, Cerritos is the team to beat in the South Coast Conference.

"We're going to have a good team," Mazmanian notes, "but it'll take more than a good team to win this conference."

Chaffey coach Howard Lowder faces the same problem as MSAC and Citrus, as the Panthers will be without pitchers Gregg Baughman, Steve Gibson, Rick Wiggins and Lloyd Linton (all of whom graduated) this season.

Lowder has also lost the likes of centerfielder and base-stealing star Dennis Hawkins and power hitters Steve Young and Brian Francisco.

However, catcher George Bjorkman (a Chaffey High product who hit .313 last year) and infielder/pitcher Mike Walters are back in the Panther fold, as is freshman hurler Mike Coppess from Chino High. Walters and Coppess were pro draft choices in the recent baseball draft.

Poly clinic on schedule

Rain or shine, Coach John Scolinos and his Cal Poly baseball team will hold their third annual baseball clinic Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

If the sun is out, the clinic will be on the Broncos' baseball diamond. If its raining, it will be held in the gymnasium.

Scolinos is expecting 200 youngsters to attend. Registrations for the clinic were closed last month and the youngsters should have their tickets.

Parents and coaches are welcome to attend.

A TRAFFIC STOPPER

BORMIO, Italy (AP) — One event really stops traffic in Bormio, Italy. It's called the Paglio, a series of ski events held each January.

All streets are filled with snow for the skiers. Cars are banned from streets for one day. The event has been held annually the past 35 years.

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The Augusta National Golf Club announced Thursday the end of the 18-hole playoffs in the Masters Golf Tournament, saying if necessary the sudden death would prevail beginning in this year's tournament.

The club said it is going to the sudden death playoff on the advice of tournament officials, golf association officers, the media "and more particularly, the golf orientated public."

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Defending champion Ron Hutcherson posted the fastest time in practice and was favored to win the pole position Friday for a 200-mile Auto Racing Club of America stock car race at Daytona International Speedway Sunday.

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Broncos of the National Football League named Mike Giddings, coach of the Hawaiians of the defunct World Football League, as a scout Thursday.

Huntington Beach tops for clamming

Huntington Beach in Southern California continues to lead the state's clamming beaches in average yield of Pismo clams, according to the results of the Department of Fish and Game's second annual statewide Pismo clam census completed Jan. 30.

Traditionally good clamming areas north of Morro Bay, San Luis Obispo County, are in trouble, however, according to marine biologist Dan Miller. He attributes declines to the foraging of sea otters.

Miller said that if otters continue to forage along the beaches from Morro Bay into Monterey Bay, there will be no significant clamming opportunities left north of Morro Rock after this season.

Census takers said:

— Five miles to the north of Morro Bay at Cayucos Beach no legal clams were taken by clammers interviewed. The beach was reopened to clamming in March, 1975, after a 20-year closure. The beach is within the sea otter's foraging range.

— The once prolific clamming beaches in Monterey were unproductive except for the northernmost clamming area, Seacliff State Beach, where the yield in two weeks dropped from approximately two clams per clammer hour to 0.3 clam per clammer hour.

Miller said that at nine clamming beaches foraged by sea otters for more than a year, the average take was seven legal clams per 100 clammers.

South of the sea otter's range, the census revealed the continued viability of the Pismo clam although results were somewhat disappointing at Seal Beach in northern Orange County.

Between Huntington Beach Pier and the Santa Ana River in Orange County, the 680 clammers interviewed had taken 3,783 legal-size clams for an average of 5.56 per clammer. Clamming success was only slightly less north of Huntington Beach Pier to Bolsa Chica and south to the Newport Beach Pier.

Six beaches in Los Angeles and Orange counties were included in the census — Hermosa Beach, Long Beach, Seal Beach, Bolsa Chica-Huntington Pier, Huntington Pier-Santa Ana River and the Santa Ana River-Newport Pier.

The poorest results were at Seal Beach where the 53 clammers interviewed took 87 legal clams for an average of 1.64 or 1.03 clams per claiming hour.

There was hope, however, that clamming would improve in two to three years because of a strong 1974-year class at Seal Beach and elsewhere in Southern California.

Marine biologist Eric Knaggs, who was in charge of the Southern California census crew, said the strong 1974year class looked promising for the future, but he said the next two years may see a drop in clamming success.

Knaggs made his prediction on the basis of the relatively few sublegal size clams other than 1974-year class found during the census.

BIG JUMP — One of the featured attractions at the Custom Car, Rod and Motorcycle Show to be held Feb. 13-15 at the San Bernardino Orange Show is this motorized pogo stick, the "Hop Rod".

Auto Show in S.B.

The latest and wildest in fantastic show and go machines are coming to the National Orange Showgrounds for the 21st Annual San Bernardino Custom car, Rod & Motorcycle Show, February 13, 14 & 15.

One of the featured attractions is the motorized pogo stick known as the "Hop Rod." This unique form of transportationis powered by a single-cyclinder 2-cycle engine. Road test results of the pogo stick indicate a measured quarter mile time of 7 minutes 20 seconds at a top speed of 2. 1 miles per hour. A new way to travel for those who have a lot of time time and are in no hurry. Fuel economy under normal hopping conditions measured 16 miles per gallon. In addition to being such an unusual form of transportation, the person who can afford two "Hop Rods" will find that by putting one under each arm, they also make good crutches, if needed!

Included among the dozens of exotic vehicles will be beautiful custom vans built for street and show. One of these exciting vehicles is the $10,000 "Massage Parlor" Van featuring a hideaway bed, full bar and even two fish aquariums.

"King Rat" is the name of a full custom Corvette Sports Car. This triple sweepstakes winning machine features a chopped and sectioned body, full upholstered interior and chrome engine.

See the "greatest show on wheels" plus stage attractions and a model car contest, February 13, 14 & 15, at the 21st Annual San Bernardino Custom Car, Rod and Motorcycle Show at the National Orange Showgrounds.

Boat Show ends Sun.

Attendance for the first part of the 1976 Southern California Boat Show at the L.A. Convention Center is running 22% ahead of last year, according to Chairman John Cordes, of the sponsoring Southern California Marine Association.

The second largest all-marine exhibition in the U.S. runs through Sunday. Hours are 2-10:30 p.m. Weekdays.

Cordes also reports a surge of buying interest among visitors to the event. "Most of our exhibitors report glowing sales reports," Cordes stated.

The local event numbers more than 600 pleasure craft, as well as 180 booth exhibitors. Boats range on up to the $165,000 Hatteras and the $250,000 Pacemaker.

Trout plants

The following lakes and streams, listed by county, are scheduled for restocking this week with catchable-size rainbow trout from Department of Fish and Game hatcheries:

LOS ANGELES — Castaic Lake, El Dorado Park Lake, Hansen Reservoir, Legg Lake, Puddingstone Reservoir.

VENTURA — Casitas Lake, Upper Piru Creek.

SANTA BARBARA — Cachuma Lake.

RIVERSIDE — Cahuilla Lake, Evans Lake.

SAN DIEGO — Cuyamaca Lake, Murry Lake, San Vicente Lake.

All stocking is scheduled road and weather conditions permitting.

Lopez opens as favorite

INGLEWOOD — Danny Lopez has opened as a 10-7 favorite to turn back unbeaten Sean O'Grady of Oklahoma City at the Forum, Feb. 25.

Lopez, now the seventh ranked featherweight by the World Boxing Council, was impressive in his last bout knocking out former world bantam and featherweight champion Ruben Olivares.

That contest took place Dec. 4 at the Forum.

The 18-year-old O'Grady has collected 28 straight wins, stopping 24 opponents. He is ranked No. 9 among the bantamweights by the World Boxing Association.

New falconry laws enacted

New regulations requiring Federal permits for falconers and setting standards for falconry — the ancient sport of taking quarry with trained birds of prey — were announced today by Lynn A. Greenwalt, Director of Interior's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The regulations published in the Federal Register on January 15:

— require that persons entering the sport have a basic knowledge of raptor identification, biology, regulations, care, and training;

— estabish three classes of falconry permits depending upon the individual's level of competence: apprentice, general, and master classes;

— set housing and marking requirements for raptors;

— identify species which can be used for the sport and set limits on the number of birds which can be removed from the wild (no endangered species can be used);

— establish minimum standards to be used by the States for issuing their falconry permits.

Federal regulation of falconry is required by a March 1972 convention between the United States and Mexico which extends Federal protection to virtually all species of North American birds traditionally used for falconry. None can be possessed without a Federal permit. Some of the more common include the red-tailed hawk, prairie falcon, cooper's hawk, goshawk, kestral, and Harris hawk.

Falconry has been practiced for over 4,000 years and is increasing in popularity worldwide.

Tour dates offered

Outdoor enthusiasts can enjoy unique visits to the winter wonderland of Yellowstone National Park during two trips sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation's Conservation Safari Program in February and March, 1976.

Tour dates will be from February 21 to February 28 for the first group, and from March 6 to March 13 for the second. Each group will be limited to 25 persons. Tours will originate in Jackson, Wyo., and end in Boseman, Mont.

Details on these trips may be obtained by writing to Conservation Safaris, National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Angler nets a record

Jim Phelps of Escondido is one fisherman who won't have to stretch the truth when someone asks him how the fishing at San Vicente Reservoir is in San Diego.

In about an hour and a half on the afternoon of Saturday, Jan. 31, he landed five largemouth bass weighing a total of 43 pounds, 14 ounces.

His string broke a record set in 1971 when Roger Dickson of San Diego landed five bass weighing 40 pounds, 10 ounces, while fishing in Lower Otay Reservoir.

The five fish in Phelps' catch weighed 13 pounds, 3 ounces; 9 pounds, 10 ounces; 9 pounds, 2 ounces; 7 pounds, 6 ounces; and 4 pounds, 9 ounces.

Phelps reports that his record string would have weighed even more, "But a couple of big ones got away." The fish were caught on a black and white bucktail jig which Phelps ties himself.

Department of Fish and Game biologist Larry Bottroff who examined the catch was able to identify the three largest fish through fin clips as Florida strain bass that were stocked in San Vicente Reservoir in 1970 and 1971 from Lake Hodges in San Diego County. The remaining two fish were crosses of Florida and native bass, he said. All five fish were females.

'Same Time, Next Year'

New comedy bows

By Joseph H. Firman

"Same Time, Next Year," Bernard Slade's romantic comedy that opens tonight at the Ahmanson Theater of the Los Angeles Music Center is a pseudo-Simon farce, mildly funny, mildly dirty, and interminable.

The play won raves (and some reservations) from New York critics and was termed "the funniest play of the year" by the American Academy of Humor and Comedy. If this is the funniest play in New York, it's a lean season in Fun City. The comedy drew much laughter from the preview audience Thursday night, but most of the quips made Hee-Haw sound like Canterbury Tales.

The plot, if that's what it is, has to do with two married people enjoying a once-a-year rendezvous between the sheets — except that they are not married to each other. We used to call it sin. Now it's a thousand yuks.

He: "Women adjust to rottenness easier than men."

She: "You and your guilt. I'm surprised you don't have a scarlet A embroidered on your jockey shorts."

If this strikes you as funny, don't miss "Same Time, Next Year." The evening is a machinegun-like barrage of these little one-liners ranging from "our song" to toilet jokes and chuckles about impotence. ("What do you mean 'Did we catch it in time'? It's not a terminal disease!") As I say, it's a long evening.

Doing their best with the improbable play are two improbable people, voluptuous Joyce Van Patten and whining, excitable Conrad Janis, a combination of Charlie Brown and Charlie Chase. They are nice people to visit, but you wouldn't want to live with them.

Miss Van Patten is fun, sexy but sensitive, the Great Earth Mother enjoying a little dirt. In her blonde wig she resembles the incomparable Judy Holliday.

Janis (Conrad who?) is an improbable cohabitator, noisy, sentimental, funny, a Dagwood Bumpstead in shorts. With the most willing suspension of disbeliefs it is hard to see Miss Van Patten taking to him, or him taking her, or either of them appearing in "Same Time, Next Year."

Piano recital slated

Pianist Menahem Pressler, founder of the prestigious Beaux Arts Trio chamber ensemble, will present a recital in the University Theater at UC Riverside at 8 p.m. Feb. 14.

The program will include works by Mozart, Chopin, Ravel and Liszt.

Tickets are on sale for $5, $4 and $3 at the UCR Commons ticket office. Students and senior citizens will be admitted for half price.

Since his acclaimed five-concert debut with the Philadelphia Orchestra and Eugene Ormandy in 1948, Pressler has appeared with almost every major orchestra in the western world, including the Royal Philharmonic, New York Philharmonic, Cleveland Orchestra, National Symphony and Boston Symphony, under such conductors as Dmitri Mitropoulos, George Szell and Leopold Stokowski.

Over the past 20 years, Pressler,s major artistic efforts have gone into his Beaux Arts Trio, and now that the ensemble has achieved an international reputation he has decided to again direct his energies to solo recitals and concert appearances with orchestra.

RESTAURANT AND NIGHT LIFE

OLD-TIME COCA COLA POSTERS are shown by Paul and Betty Krumhauer, owners of Tony's Restaurant at 968 E. Second, Pomona. Paul gives one with your beef dip order during Friday Family Night.

THE MENU IS NEW, TOO, at The Castle, 540 E. Foothill, Pomona. Looking over the new offerings are (L. to R.) Richard Milam, manager; Elaine Christianson, hostess; and Ken Westlotorn, maitre d'.

The boys at Betsy Ross Ice Cream Co. are at it again. Long known for innovative approaches to marketing their products (most recently, the Friz-B-Burger), they've now come up with another one . . . the Campfire Sundae. This newest concoction combines Betsy Ross chocolate mint ice cream with those mint cream stick logs you buy from the Campfire Girls in their annual candy sale. With typical Betsy Ross flair, the Campfire Sundae is covered with hot fudge, topped with a maraschino cherry, and served flaming at your table. It's also kind of a community service thing since Betsy Ross is helping support the Campfire Girls annual project. The sundae is available right now in all Betsy Ross locations. Incidentally, Betsy Ross may have more surprises in store for us this year during our nation's bicentennial, and the 50th for this local red, white and blue firm.

I was starting to think that John Spellman doesn't exist, having missed meeting him in several visits to his Taco Kitchen in La Verne. But, indeed, he does, and after having lunch there (the house specialty dessert, Cielito pudding, is worth dipping into, by the way), I visited for a while with he and his wife Louise. The Taco Kitchen had a rather colorful beginning 28 years ago. Neighbors and friends kaffeeklatching in the original owner's home (part of present site) encouraged her to open a restaurant to serve the public. She did, and one of the waitresses she hired at that time served me last Tuesday! She's worked there 28 years. That's got to be some sort of record.

Some of you may remember Larry Seibert from several years back when he played the organ (very well, too) at the Sage Hen. I ran across him last Sunday at church in Covina, and it was fun catching up on what he's been up to since I had last seen him. Those of you who remember him will recall that he's a licensed marriage counselor who relaxes on weekends by playing the organ in clubs. He's still at it; right now he has a three-piece group playing at Woody & Eddie's place in Pasadena on weekends, he's teaching a class at Citrus College on Thursday nights, and he still maintains a small but rewarding clientele in his counseling profession. He gives organ concerts occasionally, by the way, and I'll alert you the next time one comes up.

Valentine's Day is coming and one of the area restaurants planning to help make Feb. 14 special for you and your Valentine is Holiday Inn in Ontario. I had dinner the other night with Marilyn Sweeney, director of Sales and Promotion for HI, and she explained that the restaurant will offer Chateaubriand for 2 on Valentine's Day from 4 to 10 p.m. Bill Wintner, newly appointed Food and Beverage manager there, dropped by our table to visit for a while and we discovered we have some mutual acquaintances. Marilyn (a former PBer) and I reminisced about the "old days" over a very pleasant dinner. For further information on Holiday Inn's Valentine's Day dinner, I'll refer you to their ad on this page.

Patrons of The Castle will notice a change in the offerings of that North Pomona restaurant. The new concept embraces a 17th century English atmosphere and features a varied menu for luncheon and full dinners, in addition to late suppers.

Richard Milam, manager of the restaurant, is a former instructor of culinary arts at Chaffey College who's had prior experience in the food business at Lawry's and Griswold's. The chef is Mike Rookmaaker from Holland.

One of the most notable diferences there is a change in hours. The Castle now opens at 11:00 for lunch business. The entertainment is different, too, with "Boyer and Boyer" performing there . . . and in the lounge instead of in the main restaurant. And to help commemorate the Bicentennial, they're serving 76¢ drinks during 4 to 6 p.m. happy hour.

I think it's really kind of a shame that we don't have a jazz club in our area. If you want to hear some good modern jazz, you have to go to L.A. or farther. I was talking about this with PB city editor (and jazz buff) Jim Fulton the other day at The Bird, that time-honored watering hole for PBers and assorted Pomona downtowners which some people still insist on calling Club Flamingo, it's rightful name. Jim thought he was all alone at the Prog in his appreciation of jazz, and I have a hunch there's quite a few jazz devotees out there reading their Downbeats in secret. I think it's time to speak up, jazz fans. The movement has made great strides in the past two years, and Jim and I think it's time for it to move to the Pomona Valley!

"WELCOME TO TACO KITCHEN" says a smiling Louise Spellman from her hostess booth in the popular La Verne restaurant. She and her husband, John, have owned the restaurant for two years, and boast having one of the original waitresses who helped open the place 28 years ago. One of our area's oldest Mexican restaurants, The Taco Kitchen is at 2911 Bonita Ave.

YUMMY TO THE TUMMY is Betsy Ross Campfire Sundae which Campfire Girls Leah Maudal (left) and Julie Daurer can hardly wiat to dig into. Betsy Ross Vice President Gene Neighbors looks at creation featuring Betsy Ross Ice Cream and Campfire Girls Mint Log candies. A toy kaleidoscope (pronounced kuh LIE doh skohp) is a small tube in which you can see beautiful colors and designs.

A simple kaleidoscope contains many loose bits of colored glass held between two glass plates and two angled mirrors which go down the full length of the tube. One end has a small peephole through which you look.

When light passes through the glass plates, the bits of glass are reflected in the mirrors.

When you peer through the kaleidoscope, you see a beautiful pattern of colored glass that is made up of many reflections. The design is made of many parts that look alike.

When you turn or tap the kaleidoscope, the bits of glass tumble into an endless variety of sparkling patterns.

Although kaleidoscopes are sold mostly as toys, they are used by pattern designers, who sometimes use them to find new patterns for fabrics and wallpaper.

The kaleidoscope was invented in 1816 by Sir David Brewster.

A World Almanac globe, a pocket radio or other fine prize will go to the first youngster whose question is used here. Send question and age to Johnny Wonder, c/o this newspaper.
